Air-related building bonis '99-Tikely'

There is 99-to-1 likelihood that the Quad-Cities will encounter construction and employment curbs through designation of an air quality district within the coming months. Theodore Mikesell told the Quad-City Area Prayer Breakfast Group yesterday in Granite City.

Executive director of the Southwestern Illinois Metropolitan and Regional Planning Commission, Mikesell said there is a strong push by state and federal authorities for designation of a number of Air Quality Maintenance Areas, including this community.

Based on the sampling of air from some but not all communities, the state government for the past two years has described local air as the "dirtiest in Illinois" regarding particulate emissions, considering monthly averages.

The Quad-Cities rank much better than a number of other communities in other forms of air pollution, the state has said. Concern was voiced by some at the breakfast that an air quality zone would in effect block industrial, commercial and other activity that might contribute to air factors; the fear expressed was that this would prevent normal expansion of the job base or even maintenance of existing employment opportunities.

Fined $1,500 in wife's death

Anthony Johnson, 27, of Pontoon Beach, has been sentenced to serve three years "conditional discharge" and has been fined $1,500 for the May 14 fatal shooting of his wife, Mrs. Virginia Johnson, 21. Johnson was sentenced by Chief Criminal Judge John Gitchell Nov. 13, but the public announcement of the sentence was made yesterday. Johnson, a co-franchisee of the George Lindsey's Family Restaurant here, admitted shooting his wife at the couple's apartment at 4000 Kathy Drive, Apt. 1, Pontoon Beach, at about 3 a.m. May 14.

The conditions of the discharge prohibit Johnson from carrying firearms and order him to allow visitations by court officials. He also must appear in court, if requested. He does not, however, have to make regular visits to a probation officer.

Johnson had been charged with murder but pleaded guilty Oct. 3 to a reduced charge of involuntary manslaughter. During statements which led to acceptance of the plea, the defense attorney and state's attorney's office contended the shooting was accidental.

Additional natural gas

Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America, Interstate Transmission subsidiary of Peoples Gas Company, Chicago, said this week it has received Federal Power Commission authorization to make modest additional quantities of gas available this winter to 17 Midwestern utilities which participated with Natural in funding a successful offshore exploration program in the Gulf of Mexico beginning in 1971.

Among them is Illinois Power Co., which serves this area. The utilities also include the four major gas distributors serving the greater Chicago area—The Peoples Gas Light and Coke Co., North Shore Gas Co., Northern Illinois Gas Co. and Northern Indiana Public Service Co.—and 13 utilities in Iowa, Wisconsin, Missouri and Downstate Illinois.

Johnson asked his wife where she had been and she replied, "Nowhere," it was related. Johnson is then said to have obtained his gun, which was near the bed. He began cocking and uncocking the hammer of the gun while he continued to ask Mrs. Johnson where she had been, it was asserted.

It was contended that while he was uncocking the gun, which was time, Johnson's thumb slipped off the hammer and the gun fired, the 22-caliber bullet

Smith layoffs

A. O. Smith Corporation announced today that approximately 225 production and maintenance employees at its Granite City auto frame plant will be placed on indefinite layoff effective Friday, Dec. 6. The announced layoff will eliminate the local plant's second shift assembly line operation.

Warfield vs. Portell

Opposition in next year's Granite City election was developed this week as nomination petition forms were obtained by potential candidates for re-election. Warfield is a son of William Warfield, former Granite City street superintendent.

As a candidate for re-election, Lionel Portell, incumbent street superintendent, is circulating petitions as a candidate for re-election. Warfield is a son of William Warfield, former Granite City street superintendent.

Start on overpass in 2 weeks

Construction of an overpass that will carry Federal Aid Route 151 over the Granite City Army Installation railroad tracks and Chicago Avenue will get under way in about two weeks, it was announced Tuesday following award of a contract for the work.

The contract was awarded Monday by the Illinois Department of Transportation to Hoffkens Bros., Inc., of Belleville on a low bid of $2,593,167. Pre-job conferences

Bonds for Emert, Kilarney sewers

By HARRY BARNES
Press-Record Staff Writer
A $50,000 bond issue to finance construction of a sanitary sewer line to serve the Zippel and Emert avenues and Kilarney Drive avenues on the eastern edge of Granite City was authorized by the City Council Monday night.

In a related action, the council also approved unanimously an ordinance setting sewer use fees which will retire the bonds and interest. In this way the entire project will be built without cost to the city.

Construction of the sewer already is under way by the C. D. Peters Construction Co. which was awarded a contract in mid-September on a bid slightly more than $45,000. The bonds, which will be sold through a negotiated sale, will be amortized over a 10-year period.

While the city will handle the bond sale, the billing of sewer rental fees and collection of the fees, all costs of the sewer will be assumed by the residents in the area that will be served by the new sanitary line. Council members Monday night also accepted the newly built sanitary sewer line constructed for the Archer Daniels Midland Co. soybean processing plant.

The aldermen accepted the completed project for city maintenance upon recommendation by City Engineer Monroe Brewer. The ADM line was financed by the company and included construction of a lift station that provides the additional pumping facilities that makes the new sewer line possible in the Zippel-Emert-Kilarney area.

The new sewer will have 50 sections for taps and about 58 in. diameter pipe. The work calls for 1,670 feet of 10-inch line, 1,310 feet of eight-inch line, 13 manholes, backfill and other materials. The rate ordinance calls for a (Continued on Page 4)

Another part of the line will serve five homes on Kilarney Road, all homes on the north side of Zippel from Kilarney to Willow Avenue, and both sides of Emer Avenue from Edgewood Avenue to Johnson Road. The line will cross Johnson Road which is to be closed this week, possibly today, for that phase of the construction. The line will go westward along the south side of Johnson Road to the first alley where it will turn south for two lots before emptying into the Granite City sewer.

College center here probable in '75-'76

The fast proliferation of students enrolled in Belleville Area College courses here appears to assure the need to erect a center of some type in Granite City for the 1975-76 school year, Dr. William Keel, BAC president, said Wednesday.

Addressing the Quad-City Breakfast Prayer Group at its monthly meeting yesterday, Dr. Keel said local participation in BAC programs is impressive, particularly since the current fall semester began only a month after it became certain that the Granite City community unit school system would be a geographical part of the BAC district.

Grassroots Government

Pontoon Beach Village Board-10 a.m. Sunday, Dec. 8, at Village Hall.
Natick Town Board 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 9, at 4250 Highway 162.

General studies courses serving 245 in Granite City, 118 in Madison and 10 in Venice. Granite City participation also includes $30 in apprentice training and 210 credit students, he said. This community's current total is 913 attending in the Quad-Cities.

Spring course offerings will total 54 apprentice, 21 credit and 22 general studies. In Granite City, seven credit and 36 general in Madison and nine general courses in Venice, the breakfast gathering was told. This means that the college will be providing 149 courses at Quad-City extension locations, it was noted.

Next instant millionaire? Myrtle Stack to wait 2 weeks to find out

By VALERIE EVENEDEN
Press-Record Staff Writer
Mrs. Myrtle Stack plans to work the weekend of Dec. 20 at her job in the housekeeping department at St. Elizabeth Hospital, even though she could place her name in the Illinois State Lottery's Millionaire Game if she chooses.
Mrs. Stack, 2337 Cardinal Ave., who qualified in last Thursday's lottery for the next Millionaire Game, has been advised it is scheduled to take place Friday, Dec. 20, at Schaumburg, a suburb of Chicago.

The local resident commented today that she already has "spent" the guaranteed $1,500 prize, the minimum amount she can win.
"I am planning to redo my living room with the money," she said.

In the Millionaire Game, she is eligible to win $1 million ($50,000 every year for 20 years), $100,000 ($10,000 every year for 10 years) or one of eight $10,000 prizes.
"I am very happy even if it doesn't go any further than the $1,500," Mrs. Stack said.
"My boss said I can go to the game if I want."
"But it is the last weekend before Christmas and means some other guy would have to come in to work in my place, which wouldn't be fair," she added.

"From everything I've seen and what I heard when I visited Edgemont (Lottery District Office), they are trying very hard to keep everything legal and above board."
"They know they can't make any wrong moves, as the federal government is watching all the state lotteries very closely," she said.
"The lottery officials suggest that you go in person to the game so you can place your own name in the box."
A family member can go in your place or the state will assign you a personal representative," she said.

Mrs. Stack purchased her winning ticket at National Food Store in Granite City.
"I've been buying them ever since it (lottery) first got started. I get two tickets each week when I buy my groceries," she said. She won a $20 weekly prize earlier.
Her husband, Henry, a LaCade Steel employee, also won one of the $20 weekly prizes.
"He asked me if he can start getting his tickets at National, too. I told him to buy them anywhere else in town. But I guess it is his turn to qualify for the Millionaire Game," she commented.

Mrs. Stack has lived in Granite City the past 16 years and has been working in housekeeping at St. Elizabeth Hospital for 2 1/2 years.

"I had never worked before and then my husband had a heart attack and was off work for two months. As both our children are grown and married, he suggested I might try a job."
"I really enjoy being at the hospital," she said. Henry Stack now is fully recovered, she added.

What will she do if her luck continues and she wins one of the $10,000 or bigger prizes on Dec. 20?
"Well, we have a little mortgage to pay off. But I really haven't thought that far ahead. I am very happy to get the $1,500," she said.

Scoville heads levee board

The East Side Levee and Sanitary District board of trustees re-elected Jack Scoville, National City, as its president in a reorganizational meeting at East St. Louis yesterday. It will be Scoville's second term as board president. In addition to representing all other district officials, the board named Eugene Clark, city clerk of Brooklyn, as district treasurer to succeed George Thomas, former Brookline mayor who pleaded guilty in September to receiving $1,000 in kickbacks from contractors in a 1972 sewer project. Thomas resigned the treasurer's post after his indictment and guilty plea. Other officials reappointed include Mrs. Helen Christich as chief clerk; Blanche Fields, deputy clerk; James Spans, chief engineer; Wendell A. Wheaton, chief counsel, and William Starnes, Robert Goefrey and Harry Hartman, attorneys. Hartman is of Venice.

An ordinance submitted by Trustee Romel Wilton that would have re-established a levee district police force was rejected. Wilton said he believes district watchmen should have full police powers including the right to carry a gun.

Re-establishment of the police force would "open a can of worms I don't want to get into," Scoville said.
The district's new fiscal year will begin Jan. 1. A new budget is scheduled for posting next month.

Hubert Toothaker, 68, dies

Hubert L. Toothaker, 68, of Rural Route One, Granite City, a retired railroad employee, died at 2 a.m. today at Missouri Pacific Hospital, St. Louis.
He was employed as a yardmaster for 35 years with the Illinois Terminal Railroad in East St. Louis prior to his retirement in 1965.
Mr. Toothaker formerly was of East St. Louis, and was a World War II veteran.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Georgina (Hollater) Toothaker; one stepson, Harold J. Thompson of Maryland Heights, Mo.; a sister, Mrs. Pete (Virgie) Schmidt of Denver, Colo.; and three grandchildren.
Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday at a Collinsville funeral home. Burial will be in St. John Cemetery, Collinsville.

Director Kenneth W. Holland of the Illinois Department of Labor yesterday noted that effective Jan. 1, 1975, the Illinois minimum wage will be increased to $1.50 per hour for employees 18 years of age and older, and $1.55 per hour for employees under 18 years of age.
Holland asks that any questions concerning the application of the Illinois Minimum Wage Law be addressed to Mrs. Harriet Pacini, superintendent of the labor standards division, Illinois Department of Labor, Room 1400 located at 180 North LaSalle Street, Chicago, Ill. 60601. The telephone number is 312-793-2804.

The state's attorney's office said that witnesses interviewed including Tommy Lane, the other co-franchisor, who was in another bedroom at the time of the shooting — gave statements supporting the contention that the shooting was accidental.

An assistant state's attorney said evidence indicated that after the shooting, Johnson told Lane, "I shot Ginny, Tom, get a gun and shoot me."

Johnson then asked Lane to help him take Mrs. Johnson to the hospital, according to statements.

During the ride, Lane drove and Johnson administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to his wife. It was related that Johnson was stopped by a Granite City police car for speeding and the officer escorted them to the hospital.

The policeman gave a statement that he recalled Johnson saying to him, "Take Authorities concurred that Johnson appeared to be in mild shock at the time.

Johnson was ordered to pay court costs plus his fine.

Tree of Lights contributions reach $3,015

Contributions in the annual Salvation Army "Tree of Lights" drive reached a total of $3,015 today, or 19 per cent of the quota of $16,500.

The donations turned on 120 lights on the tree in Civic Park. Each light turned on represents $25 in contributions.

This year's quota of $16,500 is $300 over the amount raised in the 1973 campaign. Last year's quota was $13,500.

The money will be used to provide Christmas baskets and other benefits for needy families.

Funds collected by church, civic and service organizations whose members serve as bellringers at Salvation Army Christmas kettles are included in the total.

Auto parts firm looted

About $1,000 worth of cash and loot was stolen from Houser Auto Parts, 1749 Madison Ave., in a burglary which was reported at 7:30 a.m. yesterday.

Officials were unable to determine how entry was gained. A lock and hasp on the inside of the rear door were broken off, but the damage could not have been done from the outside, it is believed.

A door on the east side of the building facing Madison Avenue was found unlocked after the burglary, but could have been unlocked by the thieves.

Taken were $300 in bills and $300 in rolled change from the safe, more change from three cash drawers in the store, change and cigarettes from an unlocked cigarette vending machine, and a $100 loaded pistol which was kept in the safe.

Also taken from the safe were several checks and charge tickets.

The safe was opened either by the combination or by someone who was an expert in opening safes, officials said.

Intruder tries to molest woman

A woman who resides in Kirkpatrick Homes reported at 5:40 p.m. that a man broke into her apartment and attempted to molest her. A 12-year-old Kirkpatrick Homes girl was hiding in a closet during the incident, she said.

She said the man first knocked on her front door and when she saw who it was, she refused to allow him inside. The man forced his way in and she said she had to fight the man's advances.

The man left, telling the woman he would shoot her husband if the husband tried to get him later, police were told.

The girl told authorities the woman called her to the closet seeking help. When the man started to break in, the girl hid. She said she was in the closet about 15 to 20 minutes.

Crackdown on 7th workday

Director Kenneth W. Holland of the Illinois Department of Labor has announced that effective Jan. 1, the department will more closely review employers' requests under the relaxation provision of the Six Day Week Law.

Currently, employers can work their employees more than six days in any one calendar week if the need arises due to emergency production scheduling requirements, heavy orders, etc.

It is hoped that a stricter interpretation of the relaxation provision will encourage employers to hire additional employees rather than work present employees on an overtime basis, Holland said.

Holland also recommended that employers with a need to hire personnel contact the Illinois State Employment Service, which is now actively promoting its "Hire Now" program.

The program is designed to provide 24-hour service to employers seeking qualified job applicants, he said.

Harold R. Rudolph, executive secretary of the local YMCA, presented State Rep. Everett G. Steele with the YMCA Appreciation Award for his support of the soccer program.

He said the award was given "in appreciation, Mr. Steele, for the excellent cooperation that you have extended to the association during the past year by allowing us to use land that you own as soccer fields."

"Your dedication to the youth of our community," concluded Rudolph, "is exemplified by your continuous concern over the past several years."

Perhaps the most dramatic announcement came near the close of the one-hour ceremony when Rudolph announced that "next year, our Senior Midget Division will be known as the

Warriors to host Alton for league game; North travels

Both Granite City High schools enter their second week of competition this weekend in the new basketball season.

INDIVIDUAL PLAYER AWARDS were presented Tuesday night by GCHS South soccer mentor Gene Baker to boys of first-place teams in each of the Tri-City Area YMCA's seven soccer divisions. Receiving trophies here for their season accomplishments are eight-year-old members of the Wood River Stars who captured first-place status in the Junior Atom Division with an 11-2-2 record.

GCHS North with hopes of keeping its undefeated (6-0) status intact and GCHS South with hopes of capturing its first contest after two straight losses.

The South Warriors, victims of Madison 64-56 and Mascoutah 49-30, will host the Alton Redbirds in a Southwestern Conference clash at 8 p.m. Friday in hopes of avenging two losses last season to Alton, 67-38 and 105-69.

The contest will mark Alton's season opener and second-year Coach Glenn McPherson has his doubts about the Redbirds posting another 19-8 season record, since he has only three returning lettermen — Maurice Williams, 6-4 senior, Justin Scheiter, 6-4 senior, and Ken Ramsay, 6-1 senior.

Other Southwestern Conference games on tap this weekend are: Friday — Belleville West (1-0) at East St. Louis (1-0) and Cahokia (0-1) at Collinsville (2-0); Saturday — Belleville East (0-0) at

GC ice hockey team hosts Alton

Madison-St. Clair High School Ice Hockey competition resumes Friday at the Wilson Park ice rink.

At 10:30 p.m. tomorrow, Collinsville and Wood River meet on the ice. Alton and Granite City then clash at 11:45 p.m.

On Saturday, Granite City and Collinsville play each other at 10 p.m. and Alton and Edwardsville meet at 11:45 p.m.

In previous competition, the Granite City team lost to defending league champion Alton 6-1, and split a pair with Wood River, winning 6-2 and then losing during the weekend 7-5.

Alton at this time has a solid hold on first place in the league standings at 5-0-1. Edwardsville is 4-3, Wood River 3-3-1, Granite City 2-4 and Collinsville 1-5.

South, North wrestlers to hit road; 52-6 Steeler win

Both Granite City High School South and North carry 2-0 wrestling records on the road this Saturday.

South's Warriors will participate at 1 p.m. Saturday in a meet with Bloomington and Decatur. Eisenhower at Decatur. North's Steelers will travel to Wood River at 1 p.m. for a triangular meet with Lincoln, Ill., and the host school.

Granite City South is fresh from double wins this weekend in a triangular meet at Normal. GCHS North defeated Assumption Saturday and Hazelwood Central Monday.

Warrior mentor William Schmitt views Bloomington as possibly being the toughest of the two schools to be met at Decatur. At 2-1, Bloomington has defeated, thus far, two strong state challengers — Sterling and Aurora East. Decatur Eisenhower is a relatively new school in mat competition, with a virtual "rookie" wrestling program. South's efforts will be hampered somewhat by a shoulder injury suffered by 145-pound senior Don Hastly. He is expected to be replaced in the lineup by senior Brian Gaines, who will be competing on the Warrior mat squad for the first time.

The North High School Steelers found overall balance in three sophomores, two juniors and seven seniors Monday to defeat Hazelwood Central 52-6.

It was the second straight dual-meet in which North held the opposing school to only six points.

Steeler results Monday (pins indicated by times) were: 98 pounds — Keith Whelan, sophomore, 15-2; 105 — Matt McCullough, soph, 3-20; 112 — Neal Pierson, senior, lost in 3:08; 119 — Eric Schmisser, senior, 8-1; 126 — Jim Stirling, senior, 1-30; 132 — Charles Taylor, junior, 8-2; 138 — Dave Harrison, senior, 8-4; 145 — Dave Whitsell, senior, 4-35; 155 — Rick Morlen, senior, 4-36; 167 — Jim Stanton, junior, 12-9; 185 — Mark Widel, soph, 3-22; and heavyweight — Jim Barker, senior, 4-48.

North mentor Walt Whitaker feels Wood River will be the team to beat this weekend. The Oilers sport an all-junior wrestling team that has nearly three years of experience.

Madison five visits Venice; Trojans romp past Pacific

Madison and Venice basketball fans will witness at 4 p.m. Friday a battle between the Red Devils' fast break and the Trojans' press as the two traditional rivals meet at Venice High School.

The contest will mark the second game this season for Venice, which last week downed Columbia 78-52.

Madison got off to an early start this year and is 3-1, losing only to Collinsville last week. Madison is fresh from an 82-37 slaughter Tuesday over the Indians of Pacific, Mo.

Third-quarter action put Madison ahead 67-26 and the jayvee squad added 15 in the final period.

Madison shot 55 per cent from the field, making good 37 of 63 field goals. Pacific connected on only 41.

From the foul line, Pacific held the scoring edge, 9-8. Indian turnovers played an important part in the final outcome — 34 to Madison's 14. Scoring also for Madison were: Darryl Franklin and Ron Jones, 13 apiece; Emmett Timmons, layups for 10 points; Curtis Bradley, eight; Mike Williams, Thornton Wiggins and Joe Gulash, four apiece; and Mike Stanley and Ron Williams, two points each.

Madison will attempt Friday to continue its heavy point-making.

Venice, which lost to the Trojans last year 48-46, will depend on the double-digit scoring potential of Mike Henry, 6-6 senior, Jeff Corrie, 5-10 senior, Reggie Gardner, 5-11 junior, and Mike Logan, 5-11 senior, who combined their shooting to down Columbia.

In the words of Venice mentor Richard Essington, "The game is always a great rivalry, and Madison will be tough for us."

Independent GCHS North will play Assumption at 8 p.m. Saturday on the Pioneers' home court at Assumption in East St. Louis.
The North Steelers opened their season last week with a 67-57 victory over Springfield Griffin and then upended Okaville 56-41.
North possesses balanced scoring and may be able to take advantage of Assumption's lack of speed.
Assumption, 0-1 after losing 57-49 during the weekend to Gibault of Waterloo, will play St. Louis University High tomorrow before meeting GCHS North.
Last year, North defeated Assumption 69-54 but never played against three juniors on the Pioneers' starting list — Pat Delaney at 6-2, Chauncey Boyd at 5-11 and Teddie Cox at 5-9 — who promise to be key players in Assumption's 1974-75 effort.

OUTDOOR TRAILS More lands are opened for hunters

By ART SCHUMANN

Illinois hunters recently received a boost from the state Department of Conservation when it was announced more than 10,000 acres of previously closed land has been opened to sportsmen for the 1974-75 season.

Game populations warranting harvest exist in the areas opened, but the Department of Conservation is taking steps to make sure the game population base is protected.

The new hunting areas include: — Wayne Fitzgerald State Park in Franklin and Jefferson counties, 2,300 acres on west side of park opened for pheasant, quail and rabbits Dec. 10-21.
— Pere Marquette State Park in Jersey County, 2,000 acres opened to squirrel hunters through Dec. 15 and to deer hunters, both shotgun and archery.

— Giant City State Park in Jackson and Union counties, 1,500 acres opened. Consult park ranger for regulations.
— Fort Massac State Park in Massac County, 1,000 acres opened to all hunting Nov. 10.

— Ferne Clyffe State Park in Johnson County, 500 acres opened to all hunting Nov. 10.

— Mississippi Palisades State Park in Carroll County, 500 acres opened to squirrel hunters through Dec. 15.

— Silver Springs State Park in Kendall County, 200 acres opened to deer archers and 400 acres opened to pheasant hunters through Jan. 15.

— Fox Ridge State Park in Coles County, 180 acres opened to all hunting.

— Shabbona State Park in DeKalb County, 1,500 acres opened to all hunting except deer.

During the past year the Department of Conservation added about 212 acres to parks where hunting is allowed. During the current fiscal year, plans call for another 1,400 acres to be added to parks for hunting purposes.

Sportsmen hard-pressed to find areas to hunt may wish to try some of these hunting areas. All offer excellent hunting opportunities this fall as they've never been open to hunting before.

A new Michigan state record of bear hunting was recently established when a bowhunter bagged a black bear that dressed out to 615 pounds. The bowhunter dropped the bear with a single arrow in Emmet County.

The record broke the previous one of 612 pounds, that bear taken with a rifle and dressed out at 612 pounds. During the same outing another hunter took a 200-pound bear.

Wisconsin has toughened its snowmobiling laws. The state now prohibits use of snowmobiles on any state lands except where authorized by posted notices. Previously, snowmobiling was allowed unless specifically prohibited by posted notices.

Snowmobiling in the Northern Highland, American Legion, Flambeau River, Brule River and Black River State forests will now be covered by the new rules.

Use of the new no-lead fuels to power gasoline camping appliances is being discouraged by one of the nation's largest manufacturers of camping equipment, the Coleman Co. of Wichita, Kans.

The new no-lead fuels, according to the company, will eventually make the various appliances inoperable. The new fuels contain a number of additives and chemicals which the company claims will clog generators on camp stoves and lanterns and coat the wicks of catalytic heaters.

Extensive lab testing of Coleman's equipment showed prolonged use can damage and shorten the life of the products. Campers using such equipment are urged to use either white, marine-type gasoline or specially refined appliance fuels.

SIUE Dental Students Get Training in Simulated Practice

A dentist with over 20 years experience in general private practice in Granite City is directing the "generalist" program at the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville School of Dental Medicine, where students are being trained to fill the need for more dentists in downstate Illinois.

Dr. Vasil Vasileff, who joined the SIUE dental school faculty in 1972, is an associate professor of endodontics. He also has had 22 years experience as a part-time instructor in dentistry at St. Louis University. He now directs the generalist program which occupies about one-third of the third year curriculum of the SIUE dental school. In the program, students participate in practical situations in a simulated private practice. Included is simulated group practice.

"From the very beginning, the SIUE dental school has been planned to help ease the shortage of dentists in downstate Illinois, including some areas of Metro East," Dr. Vasileff said. "We believe the generalist program, which all our students are required to complete, is important for this reason."

Students in the generalist program learn to perform a complete diagnosis, eliminate pain and infection, coordinate and perform treatment needed, provide preventive care and educational measures for the maintenance of dental health, and conduct an effective continuing dental care relationship with the patient.

The patients come from many socio-economic levels; some include complete families—parents and children. "Students thus obtain practice in establishing harmony with various segments of society and relating to their needs and potential," Dr. Vasileff said.

The program director explains that "environment" is the primary difference between the generalist program and other advanced training required at the dental school. Basically, all procedures are performed under the guidance of one instructor who has had considerable experience in general practice. In other clinical training, students work in various departments under the direction of instructors who are specialists in certain phases of dentistry.

Dr. Vasileff knows from personal experience the challenges dentists encounter in providing comprehensive health care. "Realizing that many difficulties the dentist will face cannot be anticipated, the generalist program is designed to emphasize the student's problem solving ability," he said.

"The student performs with a minimum of supervision, but with guidance always available. He 'solves' almost exclusively in his interaction with patients, performance of examinations, arrival at a diagnosis, formulation and presentation of treatment plan, treatment, and follow-up procedures," the program director said.

Dr. Vasileff added that the student is asked to defend many or all of his decisions with his instructor or in planned seminars with faculty and other students.

Operating in its own building, the generalist program simulates in every possible way, the day-to-day operation of a dentist's private practice. There is a public reception area, and each student has his own operator in which he completes his patient diagnosis, consultation and treatment.

Students must demonstrate their ability to utilize methods of psychology, motivation, public relations, effective communication, and educational aids while working with their patients, as well as performing and coordinating the technical skills required.

"Our objective," Dr. Vasileff said, "is to develop in our students the ability to restore and maintain the optimum dental health of each patient. This ability is necessary for the general practice of dentistry."

"With the shortage of dentists in rural areas and even some of the more populated areas like East St. Louis, we know that what Southern Illinois needs is more 'generalists,' not more specialists," Dr. Vasileff concluded.

DR. VASIL VASILEFF, a veteran of over 20 years of the general practice of dentistry, directs the generalist program at the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville School of Dental Medicine.

It was alleged Heatherly entered Charles's Restaurant and assaulted Madison County Sheriff's Deputy Ted Nizinski, knowing that Nizinski was an off-duty police officer.

Deputy John Novich was with Nizinski.

Restaurant officials and the deputies were reported to have seized Heatherly and a woman from the restaurant.

A man who gave his name as Wallace and his address as 2117 Amos Ave. said he approached the restaurant and saw a man and a woman beating on the door and throwing things at the building. He said he told them to stop and he and the man exchanged words.

The man then walked to his auto and returned with a metal wrecking bar, striking Wallace's arm, it was alleged.

Government history being kept up-to-date in state

By MARY LOU MANNING
SPRINGFIELD — It's over 113 years old, but it looks classier than ever. Miss Terry has worked with 14 Blue Books, beginning under the Secretary of State Edward J. Barrett in 1947, the first official editor. The 1973-74 edition, due out any day, is her first solo effort.

And she does, indeed, do it alone. Miss Terry is the assistant editor and staff of the Blue Book — as well as the popular "Handbook of Illinois Government," also put out by the Secretary of State — and she is responsible for the compilation of material, editing, cropping and sizing of photos, layout, proofing, and correspondence with the printer. All of the work is done within the Secretary's office except the actual printing which is let by bid.

Putting out a Blue Book is the kind of job that is never done. Although the newest edition hasn't come out yet, Miss Terry is already compiling material for the next one. "I deal with every agency and branch of state government down to the municipalities," explained the dark-haired lady.

Although there is a change in format each time, copy from the last edition is used as a starting point for the next one. From this copy, updated and verified information is gathered, usually via written correspondence.

"In the past, we solicited information from the floor of the House (of Representatives) and Senate," she said. "But that became too confusing. Presently, I do much of the information-gathering by letter."

Photos play an important part in the documentation of the accomplishments of past sessions of the General Assembly. These, too, are solicited.

"I receive all sizes and shapes of photographs," Miss Terry explained. "They all have to be cropped and scaled."

It is also her job to write most of the script for the book, which numbers some 655 pages this edition.

"This is a sizeable decrease in length from the last one," the editor said. "For economic reasons, we reduced the new book by some 200 pages by eliminating some pictures and consolidating some information."

"It's now a more functional publication."

The editor pointed out the difficulties of compiling a history book while history is still in the making.

"While the presses are rolling, events do not halt," she said. "An official may resign or die, new appointments are made, statistics change, all after a deadline."

Therefore, the new Blue Book, which was delayed because of technical printing difficulties, is somewhat outdated before it is released. For example, several state cabinet heads are no longer in that position while others have been promoted.

New additions to this year's book include a section pertaining to the recent renovation of the Capitol Building. The manner in which state senators and representatives are grouped has also changed.

The Blue Book has been the responsibility of the state since 1859 when the General Assembly designated the Secretary of State to publish it. Secretary of State James A. Rose is credited with laying the groundwork for the Blue Book as we know it today. In 1903 he departed from the custom of cataloging only names and offices, and printed an illustrated section including, for the first time, the functions of the various departments of state governments.

Most of the states have the equivalent to Illinois' Blue Book, although they are called by other names and are published both by the state and private industry.

Approximately 25,000 copies of the new book will be printed. They will be sent, free of charge, to all schools, libraries, and government offices.

The cost has been brought down to $2.64 per copy, 14 cents per copy less than the previous issue. This is despite the fact there has been a 22 per cent increase in the cost of paper and labor.

Call Breathline if you have breathing problem

By MARY LOU MANNING
SPRINGFIELD — Mr. X, a coal miner for some 24 years, was hospitalized. He thought his problem was connected with black lung, a breathing problem prevalent among those in his profession.

He called Breathline and within 24 hours, the hospital's social services department had processed his application for black lung benefits.

Mrs. Y's sister, who is 76 years old, has emphysema. She called Breathline for help in home nursing.

Breathline contacted both Mrs. Y and the health department in her city. The department and the Visiting Nurses Association responded with the needed aid.

Breathline is a statewide, toll-free number for those wishing information about breathing problems. It is sponsored by the voluntary Illinois Lung Association and offers direction, not medical advice.

"We attempt to steer people needing information in the right direction," explained Ed Gross, of the association. "We don't attempt to give medical advice. We tell people with these kind of questions to contact their local physicians."

The phones are manned Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. They are staffed by professional workers in the Springfield office.

"The association was prompted to set up the Breathline because of the problems connected with black lung disease," he said.

He pointed out his surprise at the number of people who don't know where they can go to get help.

"Many people believe that you have to be over 65 years old to receive Social Security benefits," Gross said. "However, they provide a host of services — if you qualify — for those under this age."

The hotline, which may be reached in Illinois by dialing 800-252-9482, got into full swing around the middle of October. Notification of the service was included in all Christmas seal letters distributed by the I.L.A.

"However, this is an ongoing project, not a seasonal thing," the I.L.A. executive said.

"The response to the whole project has been excellent."

The I.L.A. was conceived in 1956 under the old name of the Tuberculosis Association. However, since TB is at the stage where it no longer constitutes a serious threat, the I.L.A. is concentrating its efforts on problems of the lungs, according to Gross. Particular emphasis is being placed on emphysema.

"With emphysema, we are at the same stage that we were with TB in 1956," he said.

The association is also making an all-out effort to discourage smoking, particularly in youngsters.

They try to keep Santa from giving banned toys

By JOAN MURARO

SPRINGFIELD — Who'd have thought it? Now you can't even trust Santa Claus. Seems the old boy has been caught giving, or trying to give, toys which could cut, stab, choke, puncture, or damage the hearing of the little tykes who receive them.

To give Santa and all his various helpers a little help in keeping "Ho Ho" and not "Ouch" the theme of the season, the Illinois Department of Public Health is broadening its investigation into sales of banned toys.

Last year, 61 volunteers checked toy displays in Springfield, Rockford, Champaign, Arlington Heights and Evanston, and found some 42 banned toys being offered for sale among an estimated 4,500 they inspected in 42 stores.

This year, says Chris Wiant in the office of general sanitation in the Public Health Department, it is hoped about 100 volunteers can be recruited from various groups and schools. If enough searchers can be found and instructed, the investigation of banned toys will be expanded to include Moline, Peoria, Normal, Carbondale, Evanston, Champaign-Urbana, Bloomington and Marion, and may possibly extend into some spots in DeKalb County. Banned toys are those which have been found to be so constructed, or made of such materials, that they pose a threat in ordinary use to a child.

Often, this means in today's world that they are made of that marvelous material, plastic, but of a type which might shatter, thereby leaving jagged edges which could cut or tear, or releasing smaller objects like the pellets in a rattle, which could be swallowed, or cause a child to choke. Babies' squeak toys are also often dangerous because the noise device can easily come out, and be swallowed.

Other favorites often found to be dangerous are dolls and stuffed animals — the latter because they may have eyes which are merely stuck into the heads with sharp pins and can be pulled out. Dolls are sometimes constructed with sharp wires in the bodies, or with straight pins in their clothing.

Wiant says the department gets nearly 100 per cent cooperation from merchants when told an item they are selling has been banned and must be removed. Under the federal hazardous substances act, and memorials, asking visitors to say what they liked or disliked about the facility they were visiting.

In all, 5,731 visitors returned the cards, a response which the department considers "very good." It certainly was very varied.

On the "liked" side, most visitors commented on both the staff and the physical environment in the spots they visited. On the negative side, sanitation, or the lack of it, was one of the biggest complaints, with campers primarily indicating that while they may want to get away from it, they don't want to get away from all of it — the comforts of home, that is.

It isn't, the department feels, that the inspectors are suffering from the Scrooge syndrome; they just feel that red and green make nicer Yule colors than black and blue.

inheritance tax returns were included.

When checks are returned as nondeliverable, he said, the comptroller's office follows the required legal procedure, sending the check, and assigning the money for redemptio. Then the Revenue Department is notified, since it has the responsibility of follow-up on such cases, in order to update its own records, he said. When a new address is secured (usually through the post office, for 10 cents each), a new voucher is issued and mailed. This happens in "90 per cent" of the undelivered checks' cases, he added.

Recently, it had been reported that some taxpayers who had refunds due had been told they would not get them yet because money was not available. Revenue director Robert Alphin said the state "has plenty of money" for the purpose, and if anyone did not receive a refund, it must be for some other reason. Since the Revenue Department no longer issues the checks, he added, he could not speculate on what such reasons might be.

Mandeville said that some taxpayers were indeed told there was no money available, last July, and at the time it was true — the legislature ran out the start of the fiscal year while deadlocked and did not approve appropriations until mid-July.

"As soon as the legislature appropriated our money, and the governor signed the bill, we started sending out refunds again," Mandeville said. "But for a couple of weeks, after the '74 appropriation ran out, we did have to wait."

Preceptor Beta Gamma tours home

Wall coverings and other room decorations, including picture arrangements, were viewed by Preceptor Beta Gamma members at a meeting this week in the home of Mrs. Dolores Byrnes, 1258 Klein St., Venice.

The hostess conducted a tour of the dwelling prior to the business meeting. As part of the educational program, Mrs. Bea Brackett led a discussion on using available space to gain storage areas.

Mrs. Arlene Haldeman, president, was in charge of the meeting. The Beta Sigma Phi Valentine ball was discussed and Mrs. Lucille Voyles, sponsor, was chosen chapter "sweetheart" to be honored at the dance.

Plans were reviewed for the sorority's area convention and assignments were made for a Founder's Day program. Helpful hints on fruit cake baking were provided by Mrs. Lori Mae Lombardi. In the social hour, Mrs. Pat Tsigaloroff and Mrs. Brackett were awarded fruit cakes as prizes.

Also present were Mrs. Delores Dortch, Mrs. Norma Rains, Mrs. Betty Ehling, Mrs. Jane Laule, Mrs. Jean Forrest and Mrs. Evelyn Tolliver.

Visitors tell what they think about state facilities

SPRINGFIELD — During a recent summer, the Illinois Department of Conservation distributed a little over 100,000 cards among its parks and memorials, asking visitors to say what they liked or disliked about the facility they were visiting.

In all, 5,731 visitors returned the cards, a response which the department considers "very good." It certainly was very varied.

On the "liked" side, most visitors commented on both the staff and the physical environment in the spots they visited. On the negative side, sanitation, or the lack of it, was one of the biggest complaints, with campers primarily indicating that while they may want to get away from it, they don't want to get away from all of it — the comforts of home, that is.

It isn't, the department feels, that the inspectors are suffering from the Scrooge syndrome; they just feel that red and green make nicer Yule colors than black and blue.

Frequently requests were listed for more electric hookups, showers, more level camper pads.

Then there were the visitors who wanted the department to do something about the weather or the dogs (both "let them run" and "keep them out entirely").

Fishermen wanted better docks, or the water cleared of debris, or, at William W. Powers Conservation Area in Cook County "more fish."

The largest group of responses came from the southernmost district I, in southernmost Illinois, where 1,278 cards were returned.

Some of the most varied responses came from district VIII, in northeastern Illinois, where 858 cards returned marked the second highest total.

Nearly all the visitors to the northeastern Illinois facilities felt there was room for improvements in restrooms, while at Chain O' Lakes in Lake County 10 of the visitors wanted the department to provide firewood, and at O'Leary Woods in Grundy County, some visitors felt there was a trash can shortage.

Law and order advocates seem to flock to Illinois Beach, in Lake County; the biggest area of response of the 136 total asked for more enforcement of regulations.

At William C. Stratton State Park in Grundy County, more than one of every three among the 60 who responded asked for repairs to be made to docks.

Improved roads also rated high, while a number of visitors to Fort Charities felt the department should continue its reconstruction and rebuild the entire fort as it was originally. At Bryant Cottage in Benet, where Abraham Lincoln was a visitor following one of the Lincoln-Douglas debates, 26 of the 73 who responded noted the need for repairs to the ceiling and roof.

All cards as they were received went directly to Conservation Director Tony Dean, who said when the program was announced, he would read all of them personally. Then they went down the chain of command, ultimately returning to the on-site personnel at each location, who will be expected to make future plans taking into consideration the visitors' reactions.

Next year, the program will be expanded. Cards will be distributed at each named site the department operates, which will roughly double the scope of the program by including hunting areas, conservation areas, state forests and other facilities where

Mrs. Marie Perry, 2507 Hodges Ave., was the hostess this week to the Monday Afternoon Club at her home. Pinochle was played and prizes were awarded to Mrs. Leona Parente, Mrs. Myrtle Bruns, Mrs. V. Edwards, Mrs. Margaret Richardson and the hostess.

Also present were Mrs. Mildred Gray and two guests, Mrs. Irene Argelan and Mrs. Grace Henrich.

Plans were made for a Christmas party on Dec. 16 at the home of Mrs. Parente, 1621 Lindell Blvd.

More women studying business administration

Although enrollment figures for the winter quarter will not be available until some time in January, indications within the School of Business at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville show larger numbers of women preparing to move into position for administrative jobs by taking advance training in business.

Enrollment of women in the SIUE business administration graduate program (MBA) during the fall quarter was up more than 100 per cent over the same time last year, according to Robert Schutzius, chief academic adviser.

"Indications are that the MBA program will continue to attract women students because the potential job market is very great now for women in business," he said. "More and more women are seeking positions comparable to men. And industry is seeking women for managerial positions. It's a mutual interest on the part of both industry and women," he commented.

"Culturally, women have prepared themselves in the more liberal education areas such as the arts and the humanities. As a result, some of them may find it difficult to adapt to the more quantitative areas in business. There is, however, no indication of their inability to do this," Schutzius said.

The success ratio in the MBA program should be equal for both men and women, he predicted.

The School of Business shows a 20 per cent increase in undergraduates enrolled this fall over last year at the same time. There are 228 women in the undergraduate program. Most

Madison girl wins contest

Angela Kathryn Grupus, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Grupus, 1302 Washington Ave., Madison, was named winner of the state instrumental division in the Our Little Miss Talent Contest, staged at LaSalle-Peru, Ill.

A fifth grade pupil at St. Mark's Parochial School in Venice, the youngster competed against 50 state finalists in the contest. Her talent presentation included a violin solo, Setz Concerto No. 5 (First Movement), and a vocal number.

The youthful musician has played with the SIUE String Development Group for five years. She was chosen as a member of the university's Performing Group and appeared in its first concert at Blackburn College, Carlinville, last night.

She has been a member of the St. Stanislaus Dancers since 1968, an organization in which her mother serves as an instructor.

HERE ARE SOME IDEAS FOR THE DINING ROOM

When choosing dining room chairs, it might be a good idea to keep in mind selecting chairs that are attractive enough to use as extra living room chairs when needed.

Although many people prefer a rectangular dining room table, you might also consider a round or oval one, or one of some other shape.

There's no rule that says your dining room table must go in the middle of your dining area. Depending on your space, you might want your dining table toward one end of the room or even extending from a wall. There can be many interesting arrangement possibilities, giving you more freedom in both decorating and movement.

Getting back to dining room chairs, you might think about buying chairs with arms—not just for the two main chairs—but for all the ones around the table, and making everybody comfortable.

One way to enlarge the appearance of a small dining room, and beautify it at the same time, is to use a scenic mural, or a beautiful mirror.

And, in decorating a dining area, remember, it's the general atmosphere that makes a good dining room. Create the right mood with the right colors and furnishings.

To see a good selection of furnishings for your dining area, and for helpful suggestions, stop in and look around here.

OPEN NIGHTS and 7 DAYS A WEEK

Methodist health center expanded

At Lawrenceville on Sunday, Dec. 15, a newly-completed 50-bed addition to Wesley Health Care Center in the United Methodist Village will be opened to public view.

It will be consecrated in afternoon visitation and official ceremonies.

Beginning at 2 p.m., interested citizens will be welcomed into the city center and will be escorted through the numerous rooms, halls and service areas.

Refreshments will be served at 3 p.m. and at 4 o'clock, the ceremony of consecration will be performed by Illinois Area Bishop Lance Webb, Springfield, with the Rev. Dr. James W. Owens, district superintendent and chairman of the board of directors, in charge.

The spacious, scientifically and carefully equipped new facility, hereafter to be known as the Ernest M. Dycus Health Center, will immediately be activated to full capacity.

The waiting has been long since the announcement in 1972 that the board of directors had approved construction of a new 50-bed addition to Wesley Center, and that a Hill-Burton grant in the sum of $163,663 had spurred action to build a facility which would cost approximately $1 million.

Now, the waiting is over and full occupancy will come quickly. Dr. E. M. Dycus, administrator, a former Granite Cityan, and the Rev. Gerald E. Guiley, associate administrator, have already acceded to urgency in some instances and it appears that all rooms will have been taken by the time of the open house and the consecration ceremony.

They said this week that demands already are greater than the 50-bed capacity of the new addition.

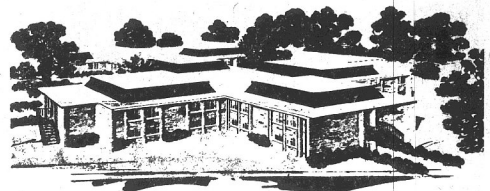

Inasmuch as the Hill-Burton grant is public money, invitations to the open house have been sent to national and state dignitaries and it is expected that a number will be present.

United Methodist Village has been attracting national attention as a model of its kind and some guests will be from far distant areas who wish to observe the complex operations of the Village, a spokesman said.

There are no restrictions on who may visit on Dec. 15. Dr. Dycus has said that the Methodist Village is designed to serve all persons, regardless of race, creed or color, to the limits of its capabilities, he said, "and we will enjoy having all interested persons as our guests on the day of open house and consecration."

"We are pleased that the new facility will enable us to serve a greater number of persons of this area. Our only regret is that our capacity still does not meet fully the demands which come to us."

NEW HEALTH CARE CENTER facilities in the United Methodist Village, Lawrenceville, to be viewed by the public and to be consecrated on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 15. Quad-Cityans have been among the residents over the years.

Some cold facts on home freezers

By BARB MAYER

If you're shopping for a freezer to help your family stock up on meat and beat climbing prices, you may have to cool your heels on a waiting list until the supply catches up with the demand.

Nationally, freezer sales are 26 per cent higher than last year's record level and manufacturers are having trouble keeping up with consumer demand.

Does a home freezer actually save you money? Research by Consumers Union, a non-profit, consumer research organization, revealed that buying, maintaining and operating a freezer will cost you about $65 a year. Electricity alone costs about $32 a year based on three cents per kilowatt hour.

Consumers Union concluded that a freezer won't save you money, but it will make meal preparation more convenient by saving you shopping trips.

Which type to buy? Consumers Union points out that upright freezers, which resemble refrigerators, take less floor space and store food in a more accessible way. But chest freezers are more economical to operate and can be opened without losing precious cold air. They require less frequent defrosting, too.

What about filling that freezer? Consumers Union found that beef purchased in bulk cost an average of 12 cents per pound more than the equivalent supermarket cuts.

An advertised price of 80 cents a pound for a 300-pound side of beef is apt to rise to $1.20 a pound by the time the bulk meat is cut and trimmed.

One alternative to buying a freezer is to rent a frozen food locker from one of several storage firms in the area. The price is quite reasonable about $12 to store 200 pounds of meat for six months.

Another factor to keep in mind is that meat loses flavor and moisture when stored over a long period of time. Consumers Union found evidence of loss of quality in beef stored longer than six months. Ground beef and stew beef begin to lose quality after two to four months.

Ammana Refrigeration Corp. recommends the following storage periods for various foods:

- Beef, 12 months;
- Lamb, mutton and fresh pork, 8 to 10 months;
- Veal, poultry, lean fish, game, ground meat, unseasoned sausage, 8 to 9 months;
- Shellfish, variety meats, fatty fish, 4 to 6 months;
- Canned bacon, ham, seasoned sausage, 2 to 4 months;
- Sliced bacon, 2 to 6 weeks;
- Fruits and vegetables, 10 to 12 months;
- Prepared dishes (stews and casseroles), 4 to 6 months;
- Dairy products: eggs and butter, 6 to 8 months; cheese, 4 to 5 months; cream, 2 to 4 months; ice cream, 4 to 6 weeks; and homogenized milk, 2 to 4 weeks.

— Prepared dishes (stews and casseroles), 4 to 6 months;

— Dairy products: eggs and butter, 6 to 8 months; cheese, 4 to 5 months; cream, 2 to 4 months; ice cream, 4 to 6 weeks; and homogenized milk, 2 to 4 weeks.

2 face charges

Two Granite City men were arrested after police responded to a report of a disturbance in the 2900 block of Oregon Avenue at 9:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Officers reported they had to use force to arrest David Carter, 21, of 2226 Delmar Ave., and Bill Norton, 20, of 719 Twenty-sixth Place.

Carter was charged with resisting a peace officer, battery and intoxication. Norton was charged with obstructing a peace officer and disorderly conduct.

BURGLARY ON GRAND

Items worth $435 were stolen from the home of W. Cunningham, 2221a Grand Ave., it was reported at 12:05 a.m. Tuesday. Entry was believed gained through the front door which had been left unlocked.

Taken were a $300 ring, a 1970 Granite City High School class ring, an alarm clock, a watch, a necklace and a pair of cufflinks.

Civic center bill is approved today

State Senator Sam Valadebe of this district today hailed legislative approval of a major civic center to be built in the Madison-St. Clair Counties area.

The Illinois House by a vote of 113 to eight today sustained Governor Daniel Walker's amendment to the bill, which authorized the project with minor technical changes.

Illinois senators two weeks ago accepted the new wording, 38 to 1.

If the governor certifies the St. Louis port woes could spell bright future for GC docks

If the Mississippi River level continues to drop, all port activity for the St. Louis metropolitan area may have to be handled by the Tri-City Regional Port and Granite City Public Harbor area, some observers indicated this week.

Sandbars, which shift naturally to the outside of the curve at a bend in a river, already have closed several ports in the North St. Louis area, including a portion of the public docks at the foot of North Market Street, and the sandbars are continuing to grow as the river level drops.

Unless the river begins to turn, all major St. Louis ports could be closed in the near future. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has been dredging the river channel, but reports it

Nine concerts scheduled

Nine special concerts will be performed this holiday season at Powell Symphony Hall by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. The series of concerts begins Friday, Dec. 13, at 8:30 p.m. in Powell Symphony Hall with Leonard Slatkin conducting the popular "Sing-Along" version of Handel's "Messiah," which was presented for the first time last year.

On this "Sing-Along" night the audience will be invited to participate in several of the choruses. Concertgoers may bring their own scores or purchase one at Powell Symphony Hall. Special voice sections will be marked on both levels of the Hall for those who wish to sing.

The second performance of Handel's oratorio will be on Tuesday evening, Dec. 17, at 8:30. Both concerts feature four soloists: Julia Lee Conwell, soprano; Constance Fetz, contralto; Walter Plante, tenor; and Samuel Timberlake, baritone. Also performing are the Cosmopolitan Singers and Festival Chorus, Helen Louise Graves, director.

The Bach Society of St. Louis will give three Candlelight Christmas Concerts this season under the direction of Ronald Arnett, who became the society's director of music this season. Arnett will conduct the Bach Chorus and the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra on Wednesday evening, Dec. 16, at 8:30; on Friday evening, Dec. 20, at 8:30; and on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 22, at 3 p.m.

St. Louis soloists will be Debbie Hightower, soprano; David Bock, contralto; Marion Gordon, tenor; and Dale Moore, baritone.

Assisting will be the Parkway West Senior High School Choir, Jerry Anne Galloway, director. The program includes the traditional candlelight procession through the Hall and singing by Bach, Holst and Vaughan-Williams. With audience participation in the singing of traditional carols.

Four performances of Tchaikovsky's ballet, "The Nutcracker," will feature the St. Louis Civic Ballet, directed by Stanley Herbert, and the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, directed by Gerhard Zimmermann. Guest soloists, all returning to the native St. Louis for the performances, are Linda Kintz, Paul Gray and Mark Traves.

The ballet will be presented at Powell Hall on Thursday evening, Dec. 26, at 7:30; on Friday afternoon, Dec. 27, at 2:00; on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 28, at 2:00; and on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 29, at 3:00.

Tickets for the Sing-Along "Messiah" are $3.50, general admission; $4.50, reserved seating; and $4 for the Dec. 17 concert. Tickets for "The Nutcracker" are $25 to $55 for the Dec. 16, 17, 20, and 29 performances, and $25 to $55 for the Dec. 26, 27, 28, and 29 performances.

The Bach Society's Christmas Concerts are $3.50, general admission; $4.50, reserved seating; and $4 for the Dec. 16, 17, 20, and 29 performances, and $25 to $55 for the Dec. 26, 27, 28, and 29 performances.

Reception will honor retired county clerk

A reception in honor of Miss Lulu Hotz will be given on Saturday, Jan. 25, in the Meridian Ballroom of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Co-chairmen of the reception are Lewis and Clark Community College President Wilbur R. L. Trimpe and St. Louis President John S. Rendleman.

Miss Hotz retired Monday after serving 32 years as Madison County Clerk. She was the former deputy, Miss Evelyn

Music education PTA topic

An informative speech demonstration on general music education was the feature of a meeting of the Niedringhaus School PTA. About 110 parents and teachers attended the meeting.

The program opened with an exposition of the "newer" methods used in music education and their attributes to learning the elements of music. Miss Patricia Dineff, a music teacher at the school, explained the application of these newer methods to music at Niedringhaus School in particular.

Following the talk, a class of fifth grade students demonstrated principles advocated in "Threshold To Music." Some of the activities demonstrated were singing, moving to music, rhymes and rhythms; "inner hearing," dancing an Israeli hora, and playing rhythm instruments. The demonstration concluded with songs from the children's repertoire at the school.

Participants were James Abbott, Roxanne Aleksandrian, Carla Andrews, Simone Ashah, Ricky Bicanic, Melanie Buckingham, Mike Bunjan, Beth Callis, Lori Deterding, Joey Grimes, Larry Holder, Mary Jenkins, Melissa Keltner, Elizabeth McNeilly, Laura Maddox, Jenni Miller, Nancy Nolan, Mike Pifer, Robert Puhse, Stephanie Schank, Dynette Shrader, Paul Turner, Peggy Vizer, Scott Ward, Tom Williams, Tony Zarlingo and Michael Zukas.

Refreshments were served by the PTA in the school cafeteria.

Guild votes Christmas gifts

Plans to prepare a Christmas basket for a needy family were among the items discussed Monday evening at a regular meeting of the Evening Guild at St. John United Church of Christ fellowship.

Members voted a $25 donation to the Yale basket project and agreed to contribute canned goods as individual gifts. A Christmas gift check was sent to the United Church of Christ of China, Hong Kong Council, for students who are sponsored by the guild.

Another $100 from the guild treasury was set aside to help remodel the church kitchen. It was announced that a $50 donation from the Afternoon Guild was received toward the purchase of a new refrigerator. Final arrangements were made for a Christmas bazaar to be held Saturday in conjunction with the Brotherhood's chili supper.

Twenty-three members and two guests attended the meeting, conducted by Mrs. Dorothea Kirksey, president. Devotions were followed by a luncheon. Serving as hostesses were Mrs. Nelda Hentzel, Mrs. Dorothy Johannmeier, Mrs. Jane Kennerly and Miss Karen Schieb.

The tables were appointed in a holiday theme. Later, the decorations were awarded as prizes and a gift exchange was held.

Koinonia Center bazaar Saturday

Boy and Girl Scout units at First Assembly of God Church, together with members of the Homemakers' Holiday, an adult group, will sponsor a Christmas bazaar from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday at the Koinonia Center, 24th Street and Madison Avenue.

Mrs. Barbara Haddock, bazaar chairman, said the public is invited to attend the event. Special features will include handmade items suitable as Christmas gifts, homebaked goods, holiday decorations and live Christmas trees.

Proceeds from the bazaar will be used to finance area-wide home mission projects, the chairman said.

Meet Dan Walker—a personal introduction to the Illinois governor

By FRAN BERNARD

SPRINGFIELD—The governor of Illinois is no ordinary man—but then, governors seldom are.

Daniel Walker, though, really does have an extraordinary background, as diversified and as complex as the man himself.

A few pictures from his scrapbook tell the story, almost as well as words.

Dan Walker joined the Naval Reserves in his senior year at San Diego High School. After graduating as valedictorian of his class of 1940, he enrolled at San Diego State College, expecting to complete his education.

But World War II was already engulfing Europe and drawing the United States ever nearer. In October, the Naval Reserves were mobilized and Dan found himself an apprentice seaman, serving aboard a minesweeper in San Diego harbor.

"I very much enjoyed my time in the Navy," Gov. Walker says, referring not only to his fledgling flight into the life of a seaman but also to his later years as a naval officer at sea.

"I never did mind the disciplined surroundings—maybe it's because I grew up in that tradition."

The Walker family was, in fact, a Navy family. Dan's father, Lewis Walker, was a chief petty officer, having joined the U.S. Navy in 1914.

And his mother, Virginia, was a true Navy wife, accustomed to life in the service.

Both parents were raised in Texas in the early 1900s, "the Texas where people still carried guns as a matter of course," the governor says, smiling.

Dan Walker was born Aug. 6, 1922, in Washington, D.C., but grew up on a little farm outside of San Diego, Calif. He went to school in San Diego, and right after school always caught the bus back out to the countryside.

"I didn't get in sports much in high school, because I always had to catch that bus," he remembers now, ruefully. His father had high standards for Dan and Dan's older brother, Lewis Jr. He had a southerner's ideas on discipline and courtesy, insisting that his boys always say "Yes, ma'am" and "Yes, sir," and behave with consideration toward others.

"My father believed you should study hard... work hard... and play hard," Walker says. "I truck-farmed as a boy and sold vegetables... and I know what it is to get up at 6 a.m. and milk the cows."

His father left the Navy during the Depression and turned to truck farming to make a living. Gov. Walker is silent a moment, remembering, then says briefly, "Those were not easy days."

In 1941, Dan Walker won an appointment to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, placing third in competitive fleet-wide examination of over 3,000 seamen. His brother, Lewis, was graduated from Annapolis the year Dan entered.

At Annapolis, Dan studied hard, rode crew, and until his fourth year had an exemplary record... but then, "My good conduct marks were not always the best my last year," the governor grins. "I had a propensity for sneaking out after hours... I can say that now, the statute of limitations has run out...."

Another significant event occurred his last year at Annapolis. He met Roberta Dowse.

"I met Roberta during Christmas leave," he remembers. His roommate took Dan home with him to Kenosha, Wis., because San Diego was too far away to go for the brief holiday, and he introduced Dan to his fiancée's best friend.

She was the daughter of Richard Dowse, an active Republican, the president of the county board in the 1920s, and the granddaughter of Patrick Henry DeLany, a member of the Illinois House of Representatives from Lake County. Her great uncle, Martin DeLany, was one of the first presidents of the Chicago Board of Education.

The governor is a rather reserved man and understandably reticent about his personal life, but he did allow a few questions about the course of true love—and it sounded like smooth sailing, even when he sailed away to sea....

Roberta came east to Annapolis at Easter to visit him, then returned for June week in 1945 to see him graduate. "I saw her once more before I left for destroyer duty in the Pacific," he recalls, "and when I had leave the following year."

"Then in 1947, I came back, and we were married on April 12."

Walker resigned his commission in the Navy shortly after that, and entered Northwestern University Law School in Chicago.

worked part time. He received a cash scholarship grant, which helped, and they had some small savings.

"But in those days, you had to buy the furniture that went with the apartment in order to get an apartment at all," he remembers, adding "by the time I graduated we had two children, Kathleen and Dan, Jr."

He was graduated from law school in 1950, second in his class, and with an impressive record. He won the Wigmore award, given at Northwestern to the graduate who has made the most outstanding contribution to the law school. He received the Order of the Coif, and was named editor-in-chief of the Northwestern Law Reviews.

Those high honors, plus the weight of faculty opinion, landed him the prestigious spot as law clerk to the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, Fred Vinson, with the handsome salary of $3,600 a year.

"My son now is offered $15,000 a year for essentially the same work," says Walker. "What a contrast!"

Before coming to Washington, D.C., he came to Springfield in 1950 for about a year, serving on the staff of the "Little Hoover" Commission. He moved his family to Springfield, and here their third child, Julie, was born. His work with the "Little Hoover" Commission focused his attention and interest on state government, and much of what he learned then still applies, he says.

"We studied the operations of the various departments of the state—the basic framework of state government has not changed all that much since then."

In 1951, the Walkers moved to Washington, but before his two-year appointment as law clerk was up, Dan was recalled to active duty in the Navy, this time serving on a destroyer in Korean waters. He was released later that year to become deputy chief commissioner of the U.S. Court of Military Appeals, a newly formed court set up to supervise the military justice system.

Then Walker came back to Illinois, leaving his family in the East awaiting the arrival of child number four, Roberta, while he served as an administrative aide to Illinois Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson.

"I had the same office then that I have now," Gov. Walker remarks, smiling. "I guess I haven't progressed very far in the last 20 years...."

As a matter of fact the governor's office used to be the huge room now used for press conferences. Walker's association and friendship with Gov. Stevenson greatly influenced his decision to enter the political scene in Illinois in the 1960s, as an independent Democrat. Stevenson's defeat for the presidency in 1952 was a heavy factor.

"I decided the Democratic Party in the state was too much bound by machine politics and not enough issue oriented," Walker says.

The following year, Walker founded and became the first chairman of the Committee on Illinois Government (CIG) and later served as president of the Democratic Federation of Illinois.

By then, the family was settled in Chicago, and he had joined the law firm of Hopkins, Stinson, Owen, Mulroy, Wentz, and Davis, later becoming a partner and specializing in trial work as a corporate lawyer. A fifth child and second son, Charles, was born in 1964.

They moved to their present home in Deerfield in 1957, where Margaret and Will were born.

And in 1958 Walker became vice president and general counsel for Marcor, Inc., and vice president, general counsel, and a director of Montgomery Ward. During those years he served as president of the Chicago Crime Commission, and in 1968 wrote the "Rights in Conflict" report on the Democratic National Convention that thrust him into the national spotlight with the controversial "police riot" accusation.

I asked, "Was it always in the back of your mind that you would someday run for governor?"

"No," he replies, "I never really gave it serious consideration, it didn't seem feasible, until I finally realized the job was never going to get done unless someone took it on and did it."

"I got to the point where I had made enough financially, put enough aside to try it."

So that brings us to the famous Walker walk across the state. And if you want to see the governor's face light up, just mention that walk.

"It was a fantastic experience," he says. "Here I was, a corporate lawyer from LaSalle Street, and after about a week on the road I found myself unconsciously dropping my G's, slipping back to the way of talking I grew up with—my boys couldn't believe it."

"You know, you just can't talk to a farmer the way you talk to city people... it took me a while to learn to slow down."

"You have to talk about the weather, and the crops... learn the meaning of a pause, before you can get him to open up."

"And you have to stub your toe in the dirt, pull on your ear, look up at the sky—then may be he'll tell you what's on his mind."

"It was such an opportunity to stand under shade trees, talking to people, learning in depth how they felt, being in no hurry, with no schedule to keep—a great experience I'll never forget."

The governor feels that his diversity of experiences has helped him in dealing with people and making judgments. "I can't always make the right judgment," he says, "but my father used to be 80 or 90 per cent right—if you're batting .500, you're going to be OK."

"It's more important that you make a decision, and then do something."

"Act... Move... Get something done, that's what's important."

Gov. Walker insists on being unpretentious. He rides back and forth to the Capitol Building and to official functions in a little blue Chevy. And he enjoys getting back to Deerfield on weekends, where "we sit around the kitchen table and get in arguments with the kids."

His mother died in the spring of 1971, of cancer. His father, just a little over a year ago, his brother, Lewis, is a retired Navy captain, living in Virginia Beach, Va.

"One thing I've always regretted was the fact that my brother and I raised our families so far away from California," the governor muses.

"Our parents didn't get to see much of the children." They must have been proud of them, though, and proud of their sons who went a long way from that little place in the country near San Diego.

Some points to consider in choosing a campsite

By ART SCHUMANN

Most campers have an image of their ideal campsite. Usually, it is an isolated spot and away from the sounds of the city.

It is a place no other camper has discovered, where wildlife can be observed in peace. And contrary to popular belief, there are such campsites.

Often, however, they are found off a beaten path, and are mostly enjoyed by primitive campers who use tents. Today, most campers are on wheels, which restricts, to a certain degree, where they can go.

The tent camper can put his gear on his back and hike in beyond the roads. Those using travel trailers, tent trailers, truck campers or mobile homes must follow the roads.

Generally, they prefer to stay on the good roads and hesitate to travel on the poor ones that lead to ideal campsite locations. As a result, campers who use tents find themselves at the typical campground along with other campers.

The good campgrounds fall into two categories: public and commercial. Public campgrounds include those in the state and national parks and forests and those provided by other governmental subdivisions. Commercial campgrounds are operated by individuals as a business.

The franchise campgrounds, such as Campgrounds of America (KOA) and Safari are private commercial operations. A properly operated campground offers a pleasant outdoor experience.

The camper on wheels can enjoy his camping if he recognizes that there are certain conditions to be faced in the campground. One cannot imagine total wilderness at such places. Because of this, if the camper keeps certain things in mind relative to the camping trip, he can go a long way in making the trip pleasurable.

Here are seven points that every camper should consider:

1. Choose the right place at the right time. Even at the nicest campgrounds, overcrowding will make things difficult. There is no such thing as a campground shortage, but there is a tendency among campers to go to the same places at the same time.

2. Don't get caught by the "No Vacancy" sign.

The trend in campground management is toward limiting the number of campers. Federal campgrounds have done it for years and presently many states are going for it, too. Often, it improves the quality of campground life, but may present problems for latecomers.

3. Know the different kinds of campgrounds.

Most commercial campgrounds fall into the categories of transient or destination. A transient campground is simply an overnight stopping point. It gives the traveler a nice place to camp on his way through. Its most important feature is its proximity to the highway.

A destination campground has attractions such as water recreation that make it a place to stay a while. To avoid disappointment, campers should know ahead of time what kind of campground they are checking into.

4. Once at a campground, pick your site carefully.

When choosing a campsite in a public campground, try to stay off the beaten trail. It might seem handy to be near such places as restrooms, a campstore, a bench or a swimming pool. Often, though, such places may be avoided because of noise or traffic.

5. Think in terms of fences. At some public campgrounds, campsites are separated by shrubs or other screens but at many they are not. Nevertheless, campers should regard the boundary line between sites as a fence. This concept should be instilled in children.

6. Don't believe the old adage that campers don't steal. Campers are, as a whole, more honest than others, but it should still be considered unsafe to leave all of one's possessions out in the open. Also, not all people at campgrounds are campers.

7. Be adaptable.

The resort atmosphere can give rise to unexpected incidents. The camper who keeps from becoming upset at the little things derives more of what camping has to offer.

It must be faced that wheel campers often encounter circumstances the tent camper may never experience at his primitive campsite.

This doesn't mean the wheel camper will experience less pleasure from camping. If he takes it all in stride, it can be an outstanding experience from beginning to end.

$40,000 still being insured

The new $40,000 Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation insurance program remains in effect at the First National Bank in Madison. Part of an advertisement Monday on Page 7 erroneously said, "All accounts insured to $20,000 by FDIC"; the correct figure is $40,000.

The First National Bank in Madison also has announced that auto license plates are available at its bank building at 600 Madison Ave.

Computer pre-printed license renewal notice forms are required, a spokesman said. He added, "If the removal form has been misplaced, car owners can obtain an application at the First National Bank in Madison or may call 1-800-252-8980 toll-free for the replacement form."

Copper wire taken

About 200 pounds of copper wire on spools were removed from the backs of three trucks in the Illinois Power Co. yard at 22nd and Adams streets, it was reported at 9:40 a.m. Wednesday.

Officials believe a thief jumped over the fence to gain entry to the yard. The value of the missing copper is about $100.

APARTMENT LOOTED

A stereo and a shotgun, worth a total of $500, were stolen from the apartment of Dennis Hicks, 1700 Delmar Ave., it was reported at 12:10 a.m. Wednesday. Footprints in the snow on the roof indicated entry had been gained by opening a window near the roof.

BORN TO LEARN Handicapped teens have two selves

By JUNE GALLAGHER

For more than a year now, a married daughter and I have sponsored an informal club for teen-aged mentally handicapped boys and girls. Apply enough, they chose their club's name to be, "Boys and Girls Together."

At first, we joined with some of their many available projects. Later we decided these young people had been mostly doing "projects" during their school year, but had a desire to "lose socialize" in a freer and looser atmosphere.

So we have experimented and learned from each other. There is no doubt that they love to meet with each other and talk, and talk and talk. Does that sound familiar to parents of this age group?

There's also no doubt that we adults have a place in their scheme of things. We make suggestions but, hopefully, they make most of the decisions.

For parents of handicapped, the teen years will have certain areas to be explored and understood. As time goes on, the child will be growing up.

I suggest reading a very helpful booklet on the subject, "Helping the handicapped teen-ager mature." To obtain it, persons may send 35 cents to the National Parent Center, 381 Park Ave. South, New York, N.Y. 10016.

Kiwanis adopts 2 new goals

Two goals being adopted by the Evening Kiwanis club for the coming year are to help aging persons and to help children.

The group decided at its Monday evening meeting in Charlie's Restaurant to adopt these areas for emphasis next year.

Kiwanis Lt. Gov. Joseph McBride of Wood River visited the club and played a tape recording of a speech given at the Kiwanis National Convention by International Governor Roy Davis who called on the service clubs to adopt the two goals.

A committee will be appointed to meet with school officials to learn specifically how the club can help the children, particularly in the area of learning disabilities. They also will meet with senior citizens on their problems.

It was announced that John Krekovich (phone 876-2323) will be in charge of lending wheel chairs to any citizen that needs one on a temporary basis.

The club voted to change its meeting nights to Tuesday, beginning Jan. 7 as Charlie's Restaurant will begin closing on Mondays after the first of the year.

Named to social service post

Miss Patricia Crockarell of Hot Springs (formerly of Collinsville and Granite City) has been appointed as a service representative with the Garland County Social Services district office, according to Arkansas Department of Social and Rehabilitative Services officials.

In her new post, Miss Crockarell will perform administrative duties involving the delivery of human services to Garland County residents, through the division's various programs.

Miss Crockarell is a 1970 graduate of Collinsville High School and earned a B.S. degree from the Evangelical College in Springfield, Mo., in 1974, where she majored in psychology and sociology. She is the daughter of Lemmie Crockarell of Indian Mound, Tenn.

Kennedy zaps Wallace's nomination in '76 race

By AL MANNING

SPRINGFIELD — Sen. Edward Kennedy has removed Alabama Gov. George Wallace from the 1976 presidential sweepstakes just as he took himself out of consideration.

Kennedy states unequivocally he would not support a Democratic ticket with Wallace as the candidate for president or even vice president.

When asked by this reporter about Wallace at a news conference, Kennedy replied:

"I wouldn't back a Democratic ticket with Gov. Wallace."

When asked to elaborate, he responded briskly: "It doesn't need any elaboration. The reasons are obvious. I've said it in Atlanta and I'm saying it in Southern Illinois."

The message was as clear as when he removed himself as a possible presidential contender in 1976. "I will not accept the nomination," he said. "I will not accept a draft."

Wallace, despite his personal popularity, has always been a long-shot in terms of the presidential nomination because of his anti-civil rights positions in the 1960s. However, the likelihood of him being picked for the second spot has been until now a topic of major speculation.

Although Kennedy first said he would not support Wallace in May, it was not widely reported until his Carbondale visit.

Wallace has several assets in terms of the vice presidential selection, assets which he will undoubtedly use to mount a major presidential campaign. He is a national figure who has a strong following because of his populist stances against busing, big government and high taxes.

And he is a southerner, which would be geographically important should a northern liberal such as Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., be nominated.

Kennedy, in fact, traveled to Alabama last year for a well-publicized political trip in which he praised Wallace as a man who stands for "the right of every American to speak his mind and be heard — fearlessly and in any part of the country."

That meeting, though, drew a mixed response. Some hoped it would forge an alliance between the North and the South and the liberals and conservatives.

Others saw it as a cynical political move. They could not understand how Kennedy could embrace Wallace, the governor who had led the attacks on his brothers, John and Robert, when they spearheaded the civil rights movement in the South.

How could Kennedy support the governor when Wallace seems to reject a good portion of what Kennedy stands for?

The question facing Democratic politicians is whether they think Wallace is in the mainstream of the Democratic Party. Kennedy does not think he is. It is inconceivable the Democratic Party would nominate Wallace knowing the Massachusetts senator would not support him.

Should Illinois voters have to publicly disclose their party affiliation when they vote in a primary election?

That question is being debated by the House Elections Committee.

Thousands of registered voters refuse to vote in the primary elections because they are outraged that an election judge will holler "Republican" or "Democrat" when a voter asks for a ballot.

The politicians aren't offended by the system because they use it as a means of keeping the rank-and-file party members in line. They keep a permanent record of how everyone votes.

"I'm afraid that one of the factors keeping voters away from primary elections is the requirement that they must publicly declare their party preference in order to vote," said Rep. Celeste Stiehl, R-Bellville, the sponsor of the resolution which has called for a study of the policy.

"In addition to this practical aspect," she said, "we must also consider the philosophical inconsistency between the party declaration requirement and the strong American tradition of privacy in the polling booth."

Stiehl cited statistics which showed 30 per cent of the registered voters went to the polls for the March primary. By comparison, she said 70 per cent of the registered voters voted in the 1970 general election and 79 per cent in the last presidential election.

Nine states presently operate under a private primary system, she said.

In Wisconsin — the first state to adopt such a system in 1963 — a voter entering the booth is handed one ballot for each of the political parties fielding candidates in the primary election. The ballots are all of the same size and color, so that when folded they cannot be distinguished from each other. The voter marks the ballot for the party of his choice in private, folds all the ballots, and upon leaving the booth drops the ballot into the ballot box and the remaining ballots into a discard box.

Stiehl acknowledged the prospect of change raises several questions:

How would it affect the two-party system?

On what basis would a political party determine the affiliation of the candidates seeking its endorsement?

How would the governor determine a person's party affiliation for purposes of an appointment to a commission or other position in state government?

Professor believes inflation can be controlled, panic is the real danger

By Prof. Ann Schwier

(Dr. Schwier is professor of economics at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, and president-elect of the Missouri Valley Economics Association. Her opinion is her own, and does not necessarily reflect the opinions of the faculty or administrators of SIUE.)

PROF. ANN SCHWIER

The voices of doom come at us from all sides: Double-digit inflation! Oil shortages! Food shortages! Unemployment rising! Real output falling! One cannot escape the dreary, and scary, headlines dominating the media. And worst of all is the nagging fear that there is really no answer, that the voices of doom may be right and panic is indeed justified.

The answer is no! — If we look at the various scare figures in perspective and at the same time recognize that there is truth in the old adage that we cannot have our cake and eat it too.

First, consider the fact that real output not only increased very sluggishly all of last year but actually turned down near the end of 1973. If we look only at the most recent past, there seems to be cause for alarm. But we must remember that from 1961 through 1972, with only a short pause during the 1970 recession, real output grew at a rate well above that which an advanced economy can be expected to sustain — three to four per cent per year. Therefore, a temporary slowing or even a fall in real output has been due for some time. This has happened before and it will happen again. It does not mean the end of the world; it does not mean another 1929. It means only that when the growth rate has been above average for a while, then it is going to be below average for a while (that is what average means), and this is a technological, not an "economic" or "political" average.

But if real output is down (which does explain a rise in unemployment), why do prices continue to climb? Couldn't we reason that a drop in output means a drop in income and hence lower total demand, thus taking some pressure off prices? Ordinarily we could. But let's go back a bit. Consumer prices have been rising for 15 years — yes, 15 years! More specifically, the rate of increase in consumer prices started to speed up in the mid-sixties when we were pouring resources into Vietnam and elsewhere, trying to achieve a "Great Society" at home, and pretending all the while that such large scale transfers to the public sector could be made without any sacrifices in the private sector at all.

The plain unpleasant truth is that if government is going to take a larger share of output, then some other sector must take a smaller share. If the transfer is not made explicitly via taxes, it will be made implicitly via price inflation. Why didn't we notice it sooner? For two reasons: real output was rising at an above average rate; and the money supply was also rising rapidly, enough so that money income was rising faster than the price level and hence most people kept ahead of the game. But this situation could continue only so long as real output rose at an above average rate and this it could not do forever.

It is true that the Federal Reserve tried to slow down the increase in the money supply, and hence in the price level, several times. But each time the pressure generated by the subsequent slow-down in output and increase in unemployment — as well as government deficit financing needs — were too great, the money supply was again rapidly increased. Thus previous price increases were "ratified" and new increases appeared. Wage and price controls were doomed to failure from the start since they were merely a temporary lid which did not get at the real problem: a money supply growing faster than real output.

GRANITE CITY PRESS-RECORD
Thurs. Dec. 5 1974

The inevitable slowing down of the unsustainably high rate of growth in real output is complicated by two additional factors: the genuine "shortage" of low price, Middle-Eastern oil, and a worldwide shortage of food due to several bad harvests. Without these two factors, the rate of price increase would have been much lower than the current rate of nearly 12 per cent, though it would have been higher than the three to five per cent level we were able to ignore in the past. But the economy can and will gradually adjust to the changed situation in oil supply, and bad harvests are an unpleasant but obviously temporary phenomenon.

Inflation can be controlled. A firm rein on the money supply, restrained government spending on new projects (obviously unemployment benefits must be maintained) and a little patience should see us through the painful readjustment and rebalancing of our economy.

The real danger is panic, the kind of panic generated by scare headlines and prophecies of doom, which can cause the Congress to succumb to the pressures of labor unions, stock brokers, the auto industry, and every other special interest group to switch to stimulatory fiscal policy: more deficit spending which the Federal Reserve must then finance. This is the real danger.

Competition for state legislative leadership

By KEN WATSON
Press-Record
Springfield Bureau

What price glory? — That is a question being asked beneath the Statehouse Dome as the usual biennial battles for legislative leadership positions are once again being waged.

The big shows are the competition for speaker of the House, who will be a Democrat in the 1975 session, and for Republican floor leader in the House.

There have been some brief flare-ups on the Senate scene, but the current top-hands, Republican William C. Harris of Pontiac and Democrat Cecil A. Partridge of Chicago, appear to be set for new terms.

However, due to the turnaround in the November balloting, their roles will be reversed in the 1979th General Assembly, with Harris moving down from Senate president to mere GOP floor or minority leader, and Partridge stepping up to president.

The House leadership fights are still undecided although veteran Democratic leader Clyde Choate of Anna shapes up as a slight favorite for speaker and Rep. James "Bud" Washburn of Morris may be pulling out in front in competition for Republican floor leader.

Why would any legislator want to be a leader, anyway? The pay is not all that much higher, and there is a lot of work involved.

Furthermore, the leaders take "the heat" from a tax-paying public increasingly critical of the legislative process and legislators as a group.

It is probably the traditional personal urge for power and prestige. Every politician likes the spotlight.

Legislative leadership can occasionally be a stepping stone to higher elective office. But history shows that is rare.

At the present time, three former legislators hold statewide office—Treasurer Alan J. Dixon and U.S. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, both Democrats, and Comptroller George W. Lindberg, a Republican.

More often than not, legislative graduates who try to advance up the elective ladder run into trouble.

Democrat Paul Simon, long recognized for his independence, never held a floor leadership post before being elected lieutenant governor in 1968.

Simon, however, failed in his 1972 bid for the governor's nomination, losing in the primary to Democrat Dan Walker, who had never served in the legislature. Simon has made a regional comeback with his November election to Congress from Southern Illinois' 24th District.

The late Ralph T. Smith, a native Granite Cityan, used the House speakership as a stepping stone to a tenure as appointed U.S. Senator upon the death of Everett McKinley Dirksen. He proved unable to hold the seat when challenged by Stevenson in 1970.

The last House speaker to win a statewide election was the late Paul Fowell, who was elected secretary of state in 1964 and was re-elected in 1968.

GRANITE CITY PRESS-RECORD
Thurs., Dec. 5, 1974

Another former speaker, John W. Lewis, served for a period as appointive secretary of state following Powell's death, but was blocked from running for a full term because of involvement in race track stock investigations.

Harris, prior to becoming Senate president, made an unsuccessful run for state auditor in 1968, losing to Democrat Michael J. Howlett.

In recent years, legislative leadership has proven a boomerang for some with higher political ambition. The most striking example is that of present House Speaker W. Robert Blair, who had his eye on the 1976 Republican governor's nomination.

But Blair got caught in the squeeze over the Chicago Regional Transit Authority (RTA) and in November lost his House seat.

Another former speaker who went down the drain this year was Jack Walker of Lansing, trying to retain his Senate seat. He was indicted yesterday in Chicago along with other legislators and former legislators.

With Blair out of the picture, no member of the current legislature is being taken seriously as a governor possibility in 1976.

There are some at the Statehouse, however, who believe that Partridge could wind up on the Democratic ticket as a candidate for attorney general.

The last Republican legislative leader to win a statewide office was the Hugh Cross, House speaker in the late 1930s, who was elected lieutenant governor in 1940 and re-elected in 1944.

The last legislator to sit in the governor's chair was Democrat Samuel H. Shapiro, who after being elected lieutenant governor in 1960 and re-elected in 1964, succeeded to the governorship in 1968 when Gov. Otto Kerner resigned to accept a federal judgeship.

But like Republican Smith in 1970, Shapiro was unable to hold onto the office, losing to Richard Ogilvie in the 1968 election for governor.

Brewer Motor closing here

After more than 43 years in business, Brewer Motor Co., 2165 Madison Ave., will close its doors when the present stock has been disposed of, it was announced Monday.

The facility's automotive repair shop closed Monday and the sales area is to remain open until all cars are sold, Harold Coy, sales manager, announced.

Coy said he hopes to sell all cars before Dec. 31, when the company's American Motors Corp. franchise expires. Cars not sold will be returned to American Motors for the inventory cost, he said.

J. E. Brewer, founder of Brewer Motors, died June 23 this year and the dealership has been operated since then by Coy, Lou Mathenia, shop foreman, and Mrs. Emma Medley, office manager. Ownership has been held in trust for the Brewer family by First Granite City National Bank.

Coy said the cars will be sold by the dealership. All tools, furnishings and equipment will be sold through the bank. He invited anyone who wishes to view the items in the showroom or shop to view the items there.

Coy stressed all new cars purchased during this month will be fully covered by the American Motors Buyer Protection Plan warranty and cars will be serviced by AMC dealers in Collinsville or elsewhere in the St. Louis metropolitan area.

Hearing on fire house permit

A controversial plan to construct a new Granite City fire station at Richmond Avenue and Johnson Road again will come before the public at the regular meeting of the Granite City Plan Commission at 1:15 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 12. The city formerly sought commercial zoning for the property which was contested by many of those residing nearby.

Select useful toys

Madison County Extension Advisor-Home Economics

Every year around this time, children make their lists of Christmas wishes. Parents in turn are bombarded with requests for many elaborate and expensive "do-everything" toys that children claim they "really" want. Many of these wants came through television advertisements directed to children. According to the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), there are as many as 20 commercials per hour on some television programs aimed at the children's market. Program characters, both live and animated, are used to sell products to children.

The FTC is concerned about the practice of encouraging children to act as surrogate salesmen for manufacturers by directly or indirectly suggesting that they ask their parents to buy a certain toy. Many parents, too, are concerned, and rightly so. Toys are big business, and American families spend millions of dollars on toys each year. Many children are dependent on immediate perceptions and aren't able to judge play value of toys. They are highly stimulated by a colorful, noise-making, quick-moving toy that they see on television. And the desire to have that toy becomes real and immediate. However, just as many adult purchases are bought on impulse, the much-wanted toy may not really meet the child's play needs or be fun.

Many of the toys children see advertised, ask for and receive, aren't conducive to children's active play. They are simply something to watch. Young children soon get bored with toys that do everything for themselves and parents soon hear their children saying, "I have nothing to play with."

A "fun" toy is one that requires action on the part of the child. Children enjoy making their own sound effects, and providing the effort to make the toys move. The more things the child can do to and with the toy, the more play possibilities the toy has, and the longer it will be enjoyed. Children need toys for fun to satisfy the urge to be active and to be doing something.

This Christmas when selecting toys, remember it isn't so much what the toy can do that's important. It's what and how much the child can do with the toy that makes it a valuable tool in play.

Physical fitness evaluation program being offered here

The importance of physical fitness and how to become and stay fit were topics of the Granite City Rotary Club as its Tuesday noon meeting, held in the YMCA. The program was presented by Mike Tharp of the "Y" staff.

Tharp said one of every two deaths is caused by a heart or blood vessel ailment. He said that in Madison County in 1972, there were 2,200 deaths; of these, 1,250 or 56 per cent were from heart and blood vessel ailments, 445 from cancer and 75 from auto accidents.

He emphasized the value of having regular checkups by a medical doctor and the importance of proper weight and exercise.

To get into good physical condition, Tharp said, "A person must first make a firm decision he is going to get into shape. He should see a doctor, start slow and develop good exercise habits."

He explained a new personal fitness evaluation program at the "Y" which covers testing, consulting with a medical doctor and outlining a personal exercise program.

A person, when he gets into shape, develops a new life style, becomes more concerned over diet, tends to see a physician regularly, works better and enjoys life more, Tharp said.

Briggs' term begins Aug. 4

Harold "Gene" Briggs, elected Nov. 5 as superintendent of the Madison County Educational Service Region, will be sworn into office on Aug. 4 next year when his new term of office begins.

Wacker named to head state manufacturers

The Illinois Manufacturers' Association on Wednesday announced appointment of new officers for 1975 following a major organizational realignment. Orville V. Wacker, IMA staff head and formerly executive vice-president of the association, was appointed president of IMA. Frederick G. Wacker Jr., president, Amnoco Tools, Inc., North Chicago, is the newly-elected chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the association.

Wacker explained that the appointment of Bergen as president follows a trend among many trade and professional associations. "The move recognizes the fact that Bergen is the full-time professional manager of the IMA and should have the authority to represent the association in dealings with the press and public," said Wacker.

Other officers elected by the board of directors were: vice-chairman, Edmund B. Thornton, president, Ottawa Valley Company, Ottawa; treasurer, Edward C. Logelin, vice president, Midwest, U.S. Steel Corp., Chicago; and chairman of the executive committee, Raymond Hollis, president, Graymills Corp., Chicago.

Second robbery suspect held

Joseph Mark Tatham, 18, St. Louis, was arrested in St. Louis by Venice police in cooperation with officers of the St. Louis Police Department's Sixth District, at 10:25 a.m. Tuesday.

Randy A. Nickey, 18, also of St. Louis, was arrested last week and charged with armed robbery in the case. Nickey was released on $1,500 cash bond.

Police have obtained a warrant and are looking for the third suspect, Dale Dawson, also of St. Louis.

Traffic fatalities rise

Traffic fatalities in the Quad-City area so far this year are running 25 per cent ahead of those at the same time a year ago, according to statistics compiled by the Press-Record. Records show that three traffic deaths during November brought to 25 the number of persons killed during the eleven months of the year thus far. Twenty persons died in traffic accidents during the eleven-month period in 1973.

Statistics for traffic fatalities are based on the deaths of persons resulting from accidents in the Quad-City area, as well as those of Quad-City area residents occurring in any other part of the state or country.

SIU governing changes due in board meeting

Recommended changes in the governance system for the two Southern Illinois University campuses is scheduled to be discussed when the SIU Board of Trustees meets here Thursday, Dec. 12.

The agenda items revised proposed guidelines for functions of the board, campus presidents, and general secretary. SIUC items scheduled for consideration include redesignation of the School of Fine Arts as the School of Fine Arts and Communications; and reorganization of the department of speech and theater into three departments: speech communications; speech pathology and audiology; and theater and dance.

SIUC proposes formation of a department of vocational education studies in the College of Education, and continuation of the University's membership in the Southern Illinois Collegiate Common Market, which also involves the following two-year colleges: John A. Logan, Rend Lake, Shawnee, and Southeastern Illinois.

Balloting by state workers

The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees has predicted victory in the largest election ever to be held for public employees in Illinois. Over 13,000 employees of the Departments of Mental Health, Children and Family Services and Public Health will vote in the election to be held Dec. 10-13, including Alton State Hospital workers.

"Up until now," said Dick Wilson, coordinator of the Illinois AFSCME, "our members have had to rely on leftovers from budgets and the generous mood of department heads to give them raises or benefits. After next week, these 13,000 workers will be able to bargain collectively, like their brothers and sisters in the private sector."

It will be the second election held under Governor Daniel Walker's Executive Order No. 6, issued in September 1973. AFSCME won the first, held for 2,500 Corrections employees in September, by a vote of 97.3 per cent. They began negotiation with the Illinois Department of Personnel on Nov. 21.

"These are exciting times for public employees," Wilson continued. "By the end of this year, we may represent a block of almost 16,000 state employees in collective bargaining talks. The bigger we get, the better our contracts will be."

AFSCME's opponent in the election will be the Illinois State Employees Association. Voters will also be able to vote for "either" organization. Ballots will be counted Dec. 14 at 9 a.m. in Room D-1, State Office Building, Springfield.

GRANITE CITY PRESS-RECORD
Thurs., Dec. 5, 1974 Page 26

One fatality was reported each in April and May.

A total of 44 traffic accidents in which injuries occurred were reported in the Quad-Cities during November, bringing to 355 the total number of injury accidents in the area during the 11 months of the year.

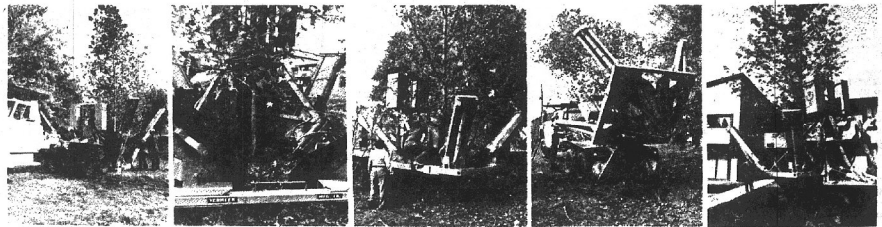

The November accidents resulted in injuries to 77 persons, down four from 81 persons injured in 53 accidents during November a year ago. The 77 injuries were an increase of one over the total number of injuries during October this year.

November injury cases brought to 778 the total number of persons injured in the 355 accidents reported this year, an increase of 7 per cent over the 727 injuries occurring during the same 11-month period last year.

The largest number of persons injured in any single month this year was reported in August when 98 persons were injured in 63 accidents. Eighty injuries were reported in 63 accidents in January, while 87 were injured in 65 accidents during May.

Injuries reported in traffic accidents during other months of the year included 61 in 41 accidents in February; 69 in 51 March accidents; 62 in 50 April accidents; 52 injuries in 42 June mishaps; 45 in 44 July accidents; 61 injured in 38 accidents in September, and 76 injured in 54 accidents in October.

TREE TRANSPLANTING MADE EASY—More than 1,000 trees will be transplanted during the next year on the campus of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville with a new machine which can move and plant as many as five large trees in one day. The hydraulic "tree spade" can move a tree up to seven inches in diameter and 15 to 20 feet tall. The dirt ball around the roots can weigh as much as 3,000 pounds and be as large as 66 inches in diameter and 48 inches deep. According to Paul Owens, assistant grounds superintendent at SIUE, the machine, often called a "digging Dutchman," has many other advantages in addition to "saving taxpayers' dollars." He said the machine's capabilities and speed mean the University can have "instant shade" in many newly developed areas, fewer tree losses resulting from transplanting, and a longer planting season because the machine can be operated successfully from September to June. The machine is being used to move trees from the University's nursery (shown above at left) to the Tower Lake II apartments area (above, right), and it will be used for landscaping around the new classroom buildings now under construction.

1254 Niedringhaus Ave. And the railroad switching lower at the 20th Street crossing of the Norfolk and Western Railroad.

Structures of interest primarily for historical reasons are not listed, but are to be listed separately by the Illinois Historic Landmarks Survey. The current list of structures is issued as an interim rather than a final report.

At present, only towns of 500 population and above are being surveyed; final reports for counties must wait until small towns and rural areas have been surveyed.

"Although we have tried to be as comprehensive as possible in our surveying, it is probable that a few significant structures have been overlooked. It is also likely that there exist important structures in undisturbed or distinguished buildings. We hope, therefore, that persons who see these lists will report to us any additional structures of artistic interest," an Illinois Historic Structures Survey official said.

"In compilations of this kind, it is easy, despite constant checking, for errors to creep in. We hope that by issuing this as an interim report, persons perusing the lists will report any errors so that corrections can be made."

"It is also hoped that additions of fact, such as dates of construction, architect's name, original use and original owner, may be supplied whenever known."

Such corrections and additions may be sent to: The Illinois Historic Structures Survey, 1800 South Prairie Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60616.

The inventory is intended as a first step in the preservation by those persons to important architectural works.

"Those interested in preserving our cultural heritage can, with these lists, begin to develop local registers that also include structures of purely historic interest as well as sites of historic and prehistoric significance," the official commented.

"A cluster of structures may suggest the need for thinking in terms of districts. Various initiatives toward historic preservation that can be taken by local persons are:

"The formation of landmark groups and commissions; the preparation of historic and architectural reports on individual structures and districts; the nomination of selected structures and/or entire districts to the National Register of Historic Places; the preparation of an official list of local sites and structures; and the preparation of ordinances to protect such sites."

gas on 42,500 acres of leaseholds off the Louisiana coast.

The program now appears to be one of the more successful exploration efforts in the Gulf, and the FPC's temporary order, makes possible the first deliveries of gas developed on the acreage to Natural and the participating utilities.

Further development is expected to provide additional deliveries in future years.

Of added significance, a spokesman said, the program was the first known cooperative effort in which an interstate pipeline and its distribution customers joined together in funding exploration and development, a role historically undertaken primarily by producers.

The Illinois Commerce Commission broke new ground by permitting Illinois utilities to participate in the funding.

In a public accountability session in Chicago in June of this year, the Illinois Commission took particular note of the merit of such collective self-help efforts. Other state commissions have adopted similar positions.

Under the FPC's order, Natural will be permitted to make 47 million cubic feet per day of the Shell gas available to the 17 participating utilities, above their regular deliveries and prorated according to their financial participation, for a period of 100 days during the winter heating season.

Another four million feet will be delivered to seven other participating pipeline customers which have agreed to pay a surcharge representing a proportionate share of the cumulative financing costs.

The Shell gas will be brought ashore from the producing acreage, located in the East and West Cameron and Vermilion areas of offshore Louisiana, through an extension of the Stingray pipeline network expected to be completed within the next two weeks.

Stingray, a joint venture between subsidiaries of Natural and of Transline Gas Co., will be one of the largest offshore pipeline networks ever built in U.S. waters when the final phase of construction is completed in time for the 1976-77 winter.

Natural, which supplies gas to 49 distribution companies in the upper Midwest, has said that it expects to make full contract deliveries to its customers during the winter heating season beginning Dec. 1, 1974.

The FPC order on the Shell gas will permit modest additional deliveries of gas during the heating season to the participating utilities and those However, overall car sales have slumped sharply.

It is contended by many that frames add much to the strength of passenger vehicles.

The Granite City auto frame plant of 1.2 million a year is a Milwaukee-based corporation with diverse products, originally produced frames for Chrysler but in recent years also has made frames for several other General Motors autos.

GM announced Friday that another 24,000 hourly workers would be laid off indefinitely by the end of January; about 40,000 already had been given such layoffs.

General Motors also said Friday that temporary layoffs for detailed trimmings will affect 41,000 of its workers in January, compared to 30,000 in December.

Altogether 105,000 of GM's 370,000 production workers will be off the job for part or all of January — 64,000 on indefinite layoff and 41,000 for specified periods.

Holiday dinner for Gideons

Christmas dinner was served to the Granite City Gideons and Auxiliary at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Foster, Rural Route One, Edwardsville, Monday evening. Dinner included turkey with the traditional trimmings.

Christmas carols were sung after dinner with Mrs. Edward Stone accompanying the singers on the organ.

Walter Holst, Gideon chaplain, offered the devotions, and C. F. Reimers, treasurer, reported on a rally held in the Quad-City area.

Nurses' and hospital testimonials have been presented to the Colonial Nursing Home in Maryville, it was reported. The meeting closed with a short message delivered by Cliff Stephenson of Collinsville.

Other members present were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Beide, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Finley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Staveley, Edward Stone and daughter Sandra, Mrs. Walter Holst and Mrs. Charles Reimers.

Guests were Arthur Neidhardt and Dick Peti of the Belleville Gideon Camp.

Ballet group to perform Sundays

Community Civic Ballet, a 30-member dance group made up of residents of Southern Illinois and Missouri, will perform in the St. Clair Square Mall at Fairview Heights at 2:30 and 3:30 p.m. Sunday. The performance will be repeated at the same times on Sunday, Dec. 15.

Mrs. Irene Gintautas of Caseyville, ballet director, said the group will present traditional Christmas numbers from Tchaikovsky's Nutcracker Suite as well as folk dances and other classical pieces.

"The Dance of the Sugar Plum Fairy should delight the children, as well as the Puss in Boots number from Sleeping Beauty," Mrs. Gintautas commented. The program finale will feature Franz Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody with the dancers in full costume, she added.

WHERE ECONOMY ORIGINATES

THE FIRST STEPS OF OPERATION AWARE

The President says that inflation is Domestic Enemy Number One. And here's how A & P is going to help you fight it. We're starting a new consumer program called Operation Aware. Because we're aware of the problems every consumer is facing today. These are the first steps we're taking to fight them.

1. AN EARLY WARNING SYSTEM ON PRICE INCREASES: THE AWARE LIST.

Every week we will voluntarily post a list of price increases such as those received from manufacturers a full seven days before we actually change our price. That gives you one week to purchase at the old price. And if we run out of the item before the date of the price change, we'll give you a Rain Check at the old price. You'll also find "Be Aware" shelf tags on many frequently purchased items, with the day of the price increase right on the tag. Of course, the "Aware" list won't include perishables like meat, eggs or fresh fruit and vegetables, where markets fluctuate daily; items controlled by law; or advertised specials. The Aware list can help you save.

2. A PRICE FREEZE ON A&P PRIVATE LABELS.

Starting today, A&P voluntarily puts a freeze on over 1000 A&P Products. (Smaller stores may not regularly stock all items, but a list is available in all stores). That means prices will go no higher at least until the end of the year, on many products that you use everyday: bread, cheese, pasta, coffee, non-fat dry milk, frozen potatoes, rice, tuna fish, fruit cocktail, frozen dinners and canned peas and corn. Advertised specials below the freeze prices will still be offered. We've put the freeze on our private labels because they represent the best value in our stores, and we'll hold down the prices, even if our ingredient costs go up.

3. OUR 13 POINT CONSUMER PROTECTION POLICY.

It's our continuing commitment to making you an Aware shopper by reminding you of what every A & P store owes you and by informing you of ways to get the most for your money. Look for the signs going up inside A & P stores spelling out all the protection A & P gives you:

1. Guaranteed Satisfaction
2. Exceptional Value
3. Low Price With Absolutely No Compromise in Quality
4. Rain Check-Product Availability
5. Product Freshness Through Open Dating
6. Consumer Information
7. Courteous Service
8. Cleanliness
9. Safe And Healthy Products
10. Shopping Convenience
11. The Butcher's Practice
12. Variety of Choice
13. People To People Communication.

Park preschool registration

Only a limited number of youngsters will be accepted for the winter-spring semester in the Granite City Park District's preschool series, Harold Brown, district superintendent, said today.

Registration will start Tuesday at 9 a.m. at Wilson Park office, with a total of 35 children to be accepted on a first-come, first-serve basis, the park office advised.

Participation will be restricted to 35 children who reside within the park district boundaries and who will reach their fourth birthday before Feb. 1.

The class being formed will be required to show proof of residency, such as a receipted utility bill or similar document which bears a current address.

The preschool series, taught by Mrs. Rosemary Lindner and Mrs. Harriet Lovins, is free to participants with the exception of a small daily charge to cover cost of fruit juice and cookies.

PREHISTORIC MAN IN ILLINOIS

The population theories of Malthus and the widely accepted scholarly views on the development of prehistoric man are disputed by findings at what may be the most important archaeological site in North America—a farm in Greene County, Illinois.

In 1969, Dr. Stuart Struver of Northwestern University was shown artifacts dating to 1000 A.D. in a field on the Koster farm near Eldred and Kampsville. The site is in the lower Illinois River valley, a natural spot for habitation by early man. Test samples revealed an archaeological treasure—at least 12 cultures (horizons) separated from one another by sterile soil. Horizon 12, the oldest yet excavated, reveals habitation of the site by archaic man almost immediately after the glacial age, 8000 to 10,000 B.C.

Archaic man lived at Koster for 3000 years before the development of agriculture—disputing accepted theories that hunting and gathering man did not build houses and live in communities until he learned to plant crops. The Koster archaic man was peaceful. He had leisure time, but did not use that time for creative activities such as art. At horizon six, 3000 to 2500 B.C., man lived an average of 32 years in what may be the oldest houses in the United States. He suffered from arthritis, tuberculosis, and syphilis, and maintained a stable population in spite of an abundant food supply.

Summer digs at Koster have grown from a staff of 18 to an interdisciplinary effort involving 225 students and professionals. Northwestern University and the National Science Foundation provide 40 percent of the funding, and the remaining 60 percent is raised by private contributions to the Foundation for Illinois Archeology. Computer technology has been added to the project, already unique for the way in which all aspects of the site are under simultaneous investigation by persons of many disciplines. A total picture of the plants, animals, shells, diets, health, economy and social organization of each horizon is beginning to take shape.

The archeologists are in a race against progress. At least 250 archeological sites have been identified in the Kampsville area, including the Koster site now under investigation two miles from Koster. The sites have been preserved both by natural forces and by the relative isolation of the area. Only 70 miles northeast of St. Louis, Koster has been protected from subdivisions and industry by the Mississippi and Illinois rivers. However, proposed bridges across those rivers will open the lower valley to metropolitan expansion and seal the past forever in cement.

Permits for new signs

Permits for nineteen signs to be erected at the new Central Hardware Store which is to open in late February at the Crossroads Plaza Shopping Center were among 27 building permits issued by Granite City during the second half of November which lists values of $8,105.

Also among the permits was one to S. M. Wilson Construction Co. for a 60 feet by 30 feet metal building addition at 14th Street and Cleveland Boulevard, costing $3,000.

No values were listed for the Central Hardware signs. Among those for which permits were issued were 15 signs, each 5 feet by 7 feet, 1 inch, and each bearing one letter of the name Central Hardware. Other signs were: 10 feet by 30 feet, 5' by 22', 4' by 62" and 6' by 8'.

Other permits issued were to: Loyal Gundersen, 2649 Center, addition, $1,000; Carl Wallace, 2642 Ralph, rear porch, $1,000; Henry Ross Construction, 3701 Nameoki Road, storm water connection, $2,000; Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., roof repairs, $260, and Willard Finn, 2608 Denver, attached garage, $800.

Pontoon, 64-square-foot sign for Kuk Jin Baek's School of Taekwondo Korean Karate; William Brannan, 2102 Nevada, roof, $200, and Nathan Keil, 1434 Norwood, carport, $45.

The new permits brought the total for November to 44 with listed values of $77,053. Included were three additions worth $4,600; five garages and carports worth $2,790; five remodeling projects costing $1,998; five commercial and industrial buildings worth $8,000; five mobile homes worth $87,000, and 21 miscellaneous projects, including the 19 Central Hardware signs, with values of $2,600 listed.

No permits for new homes were issued during the month. One permit was issued to raze a building with no cost listed.

Tax forms being prepared

The Internal Revenue Service is now printing the 1940 and 1940A individual income tax packages—and yours will be on its way by the end of this month. In Central and Southern Illinois, there will be 1,100,541 distributed. Ira S. Loeb, IRS district director, said today.

For the first time, the IRS hopes to print all tax forms on recycled paper for environmental and economic reasons.

The 1974 forms also include the addition of a "no" box in connection with the 1976 Presidential Election Campaign Fund checkoff. This will allow taxpayers to check "yes" or "no" in answer to the question of whether they want to designate $1 ($2 on joint returns) to the fund.

The forms will continue to make it clear that a checkoff designation does not decrease any refund nor increase the tax liability of taxpayers.

Loeb said at Springfield that the new forms are much like last year's, and that taxpayers will be able to use their 1973 forms as a guide in preparing their 1974 returns.

The main difference between the 1973 and 1974 forms is the reintroduction of Schedule B for the reporting of dividend and interest income.

On 1973 returns, taxpayers listed the total for all dividends and interest income. On the 1974 form, taxpayers who have more than $400 of dividend income or $400 of interest income must file Schedule B.

A section headed "Highlights" on the front page of the forms package draws the taxpayer's attention to the IRS toll-free telephone service, the new rule regarding the interest and dividend ceiling, and the fact that IRS supervisors occasionally monitor telephone calls to improve the quality of telephone taxpayer assistance.

The director stressed that such action is taken solely for the purpose of spot-checking on the quality of this service.

He further emphasized that no telephone calls are recorded and that no record is made of the taxpayer's name or address unless, at the request of the taxpayer, a follow-up telephone call is necessary.

Seminar on dialogue between subcultures

Improved relations between individuals and ways to achieve them will be discussed Friday at the University Seminar sponsored by Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Robert O. Anderson and Joseph A. Munshaw, both assistant professors of speech communication, will speak on "The Future as Multilogue: Acceptance Education for Intergroup Relations," at 8 p.m. Friday in the auditorium of Lovejoy Library.

They will be assisted by Deane Hillen of Edwardsville, designated as a presidential scholar for the seminar session. Anderson and Munshaw contend that America's future will increasingly be multilingual, with many subculture voices competing for recognition and identity.

They believe that a philosophy of "acceptance education" based on principles of interpersonal communication will help individuals adjust to the changing conditions.

She was born in Corning, Ark., and lived here the past eight years with her husband Paul L. Howell Sr., an employee of REA Express Co., St. Louis. She was of the Presbyterian faith.

Other than her husband, Mrs. Howell is survived by a son, Paul L. Howell Jr. of Granite City; two daughters, Mrs. Duke (Carol) Clark of Sacramento, Calif., and Mrs. Bill (Karen) Clairborne of Kilgore, Tex.; two sisters, Mrs. Herman (Charlotte) Moss of Garden Grove, Calif., and Miss Ruth Manning of Kansas City, Mo.; four brothers, Carl Manning of Loveland, Colo., Eugene Manning of Macon, Ga., and Eddie Manning and Richard Manning, both of Jonesboro, Ark., and six grandchildren.

"We have tried to represent all the departments and all the phases, undergraduate and graduate, of our programs."

The exhibit is open to the public.

Fire call at nursing home

An overheated rotor on a room heater caused Granite City firemen to be called to the Colonial Haven Nursing Home, 3900 Stearns Ave., at 10:40 a.m. Tuesday. Firemen were on the scene 15 minutes. There was no fire.

Firemen also were called to the home of Wilfred Barnes, 1150 Rhodes St., at 6:35 a.m. Monday when a furnace overheated. There was no loss. At 4:30 p.m. Monday, firemen responded to an alarm at the Libson Shop, 19th Street and Edison Avenue, where a lighting fixture had an electrical short causing smoke in the building. There was no fire. Firemen were at the store 20 minutes.

Move to fight drug abuse

The problem of curbing and preventing drug abuse in the schools was the topic of discussion at Madison Tuesday night by city, school and police officials and a group of concerned citizens.

The meeting, held in the Madison Fire Hall, was attended by City Council members, Board of Education members, school administrators, citizens and representatives of the Madison County Sheriff's Department. Superintendent of Schools John Palchiff chaired the meeting.

"We all know drug problems exist and with a cooperative community effort we can keep the problem from growing and greatly reduce the current drug use," he said.

Li. John Cooper of the Madison County Sheriff's Department showed a new movie titled "11:59 Last Minute to Choose."

A general discussion on the film in the schools was held. One parent said he thought the film, along with a talk by a reformed addict who had knowledge about what use of drugs can lead to would be of benefit at the high school level.

Earl McClanahan, junior high principal, said, "I think this film is a scare tactic and I object to using scare tactics in the schools. I do not want it shown in the junior high."

Li. Cooper replied, "The film is not intended to scare people, but to show the drug situation and what happens to people, particularly young people, who become deeply involved in drug use. The film is authentic and depicts real addicts. These were drug users and real hospital scenes."

One person commented, "The young people in the film look a lot older than high school age." Li. Cooper noted that "They look older, but they are not. If you remember, one said he was 17 and another 12. They look hard because they have had a hard life on drugs."

Alderman John Haynes said, "I think we need to put more emphasis on catching the thief (pusher) and stop it there, and to get more drug information to the ministers to educate both adults and children in the Sunday Schools and churches."

It was noted the problem first starts in the home. Parents need to educate themselves on the drug problem so that they may begin at an early age to educate their children, according to the view voiced by several persons.

Mayor Mike Sasyk said, "The city administration and our police department will cooperate in any way we can with follow through on problems brought to our attention."

"This meeting tonight was called at the request of our Citizens Advisory Group," Superintendent Palchiff said. "This is a starting point and has given everyone a chance to voice opinions and hear each others' points of view of this problem. Since it is a problem that affects all of us, we can work together and take some positive action."

2 requests for Appeals Board

Two petitions are to be considered by the Granite City Board of Appeals at its regular meeting at 1:15 p.m. Wednesday at the city offices at 2301 Adams St.

Gus Koesterer is requesting a variance to construct an office building closer to the alley than allowed by ordinance at 2740 Madison Ave., an R-3 residential district.

Vernon Skipper, 2617 Willow Ave., is seeking a variance to construct an attached garage two feet from his side property line in an R-2 residential district.

Chouteau cleanup planned

James Eates, highway commissioner of Chouteau Township, told the township's board of auditors Monday night that cleaning up dumping areas and repairing roads will be the priorities for which he will utilize new employees offered free to the township under the Madison County grant from the Manpower Development Program.

Eates said the workers, in addition to picking up dumped trash, will assist the highway department with roadwork and snow removal. A township official also requested the extra men be used to clean blocked culverts.

The highway commissioner said he does not know how many men will be granted to the township under the county grant, but said he will attempt to obtain as many as possible. The workers are paid by the federal government and are available at no cost to the township, as long as the program lasts.

The township board voted to purchase a photocopy machine from 3-M Company for $175.

Society to aid layette project

Sacred Heart Altar Society members agreed last week to contribute gifts or cash donations to the Layettes for the Newborn program, sponsored by the Quad-City Church Women United, in lieu of their annual gift exchange.

Mrs. Marie J. Prehn, president, who conducted the business session, asked that the gifts be brought to the society's Christmas party at the Granite City Army Installation's Officers Club.

Cochairmen of the party are Mrs. Margie Greenwald and Mrs. Jackie Francis. Their committee consists of Mesdames Mattie Sotiroff, Gladys Koisher, Rosemary Holtgrave, Joanne Lucido, Pat McKee, Dolores Harizal and Clara Riess.

Reports were given by Mrs. Kathy Foster, treasurer; and committee chairmen, Jeanne Lucido, Margie Greenwald, Cecilia Loyet, Teresa Alexander, Barbara Walker and Maggie Williamson.

Mrs. Prehn said a general meeting and installation of officers of the Church Women United will take place at Sacred Heart School cafeteria on Jan. 7. Mrs. McKee and Mrs.

Alexander will serve as chairmen for the host group. Mrs. Irene Argelan, the society's Diocesan Council of Catholic Women's representative, reviewed topics discussed at an Altar Society meeting held in Black Jack, Ill. Mrs. Marie Perry, Mrs. Cecilia Loyet and Mrs. Marionrose Lambert also attended.

The Rev. James P. Hill, pastor of Sacred Heart, described trends in the church today. Associate pastor, the Rev. Daniel A. Flynn, who also is Catholic Youth Organization director, announced the CYO will sponsor a bake sale on Sunday, Dec. 15, at the school. Also present at the meeting was the Rev. Gerald J. Griffin, an associate pastor.

Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Maggie Williamson and Mrs. Dolores Harizal. The hostesses, Mesdames Barbara Walker, Georgia Miller, Gertie Petty and Maggie Williamson, served a Thanksgiving dinner.

Members also prepared packets of candy to be used at a "Winter Carnival" at the school Saturday evening.

Parents group plans events

Chapter 91 of Parents Without Partners will host its annual "Sno Ball" dinner dance on Saturday evening at Bellaire Bowl in Belleville, according to the president, James Dowdy.

Cocktails will be served at 6:30, with dinner at 7:30 and dancing scheduled from 9 p.m. Other plans announced by Dowdy for December include a family wiener roast Sunday; and a general meeting at 8 p.m. Monday, Dec. 9, at the VFW Post, 1234 Vandallia Ave., Collinsville.

A children's Christmas party will be held from 2:30 to 5 p.m. Dec. 15 at the Bellaire Bowl; and a Saturday night social on Dec. 21 at the home of Mrs. Evelyn Stephens, 2520 Parkview Apts., to honor members having birthdays between Nov. 22 and Dec. 21.

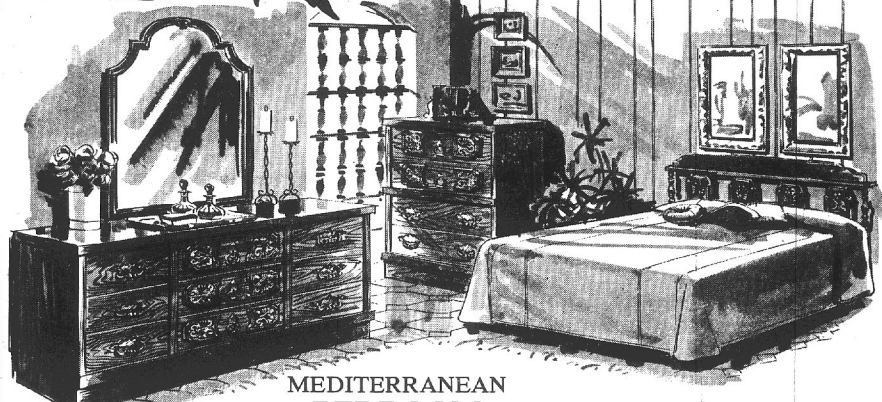

He also reported plans for a New Year's party at Collinsville Park, featuring the music of Bill Berutti.

Vaccine is distributed to fight 'Port Chalmers flu'

Thousands of aging Illinois citizens had a little more to give thanks for this Thanksgiving, as the Illinois Department of Public Health began shipping 50,000 doses of influenza vaccine throughout the state for distribution to aging and chronically ill persons.

Nearly 100 nursing homes and health departments received shipments of the vaccine before Thanksgiving. Recipients included Pleasant Rest Nursing Home in Collinsville and Anna-Henry Nursing Home in Edwardsville.

It will help protect "high risk" groups from Port Chalmers Flu, a Type A strain which can cause serious complications to those who are over 65 years of age, or who suffer from a chronic illness such as heart disease, diabetes or diseases which affect the lungs or kidneys.

Dr. Joyce Lashof, director of the state health department, said the 50,000 doses of vaccine are being distributed "where they will most effectively prevent widespread outbreaks of influenza among those who are at highest risk."

"Port Chalmers Flu," she explained, "is more likely to cause community outbreaks during this influenza season than the Type B influenza experienced in Illinois last year; and it affects adults more often than children."

"In people who are under 65 and in good health," Dr. Lashof added, "the disease will run its course and serious complications are infrequent."

State plans book on rights of investors

Michael J. Howlett, secretary of state, is preparing a pamphlet for investors, to explain their rights and protections under the Illinois Securities Law, he said Wednesday night.

Howlett prepared his comments for a monthly Women's Banking Forum. About 100 women attend the Chicago forum to hear lectures on banking and finance by bank officers.

"Eleven experts in the securities field advise our office on operation of our Securities Division," he said.

"The Illinois Securities Law of 1953 was written to protect investors from fraud, but can't save them from losing money on an investment that goes wrong."

"It tries to protect the investor in four basic ways:

"It requires that securities be registered with our Securities Division before they may be offered for sale.

"It provides for licensing and regulation of investment advisers and securities dealers and salesmen.

"It provides civil remedies to buyers of securities sold in violation of the law.

"And it provides for discipline, and in some cases criminal penalties, for violators."

"The law requires disclosure of information about securities and the sellers. But it is up to the buyer to use the information for his own protection," Howlett noted.

"The first rule of sound investment is to investigate first. Buyers should learn all they can about their prospective purchase, should seek legal and professional advice, should beware of strangers selling securities by telephone or doorbell."

"The Illinois Securities Law is lengthy, complicated and hard for a layman to understand. Our staff is preparing a pamphlet which will summarize the law. It will be short, simple and readable."

"The Securities Division will make it available to any investor who wants it. Its use will help stop promoters from selling worthless securities to unsuspecting buyers."

Kroger to freeze some food prices

Kroger Stores in this area are freezing prices on a new group of 1,100 grocery items for two months as part of a nationwide anti-inflation program announced by the Supermarket Co.

The 47 in the metropolitan area previously froze prices on a group of 500 grocery products from Sept. 30 to Nov. 28, Charles W. White, vice-president of the Gateway marketing area announced that Phase II of Gateways anti-inflation program, which began Dec. 1 will assure shoppers that no price increases will be made on these items throughout the holidays and extending into the New Year to Feb. 1.

The local program now has been extended to cover all Kroger Stores in the nation. More than 9½ million Kroger shoppers in 1,240 supermarkets in 20 states will benefit from the companywide program, White said.

White said the 1,100 grocery prices which will be frozen in the Gateway marketing area, which covers the State of Missouri and Central and Southern Illinois, include a wide range of grocery products—basic, fundamental items and brands which are a regular part of the family's weekly supermarket purchase.

A key part of the freeze program is that leading national brands as well as Kroger's own brands are included in such categories as cereals, canned vegetables, canned meats, juices, paper products, household items, pet foods, cheese, peanut butter and frozen foods.

Blue "Kroger Price Freeze" shelf markers will identify for shoppers the products on which no price increases will be made for two-month period, no matter what happens to the market.

Idea for yule lighting

The custom of decorating outdoors with lighted candles (luminarias) on Christmas Eve, an inexpensive, simple and energy conserving idea originating in Mexico, has spread to many communities in the United States the past few years.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Morris of Wheaton, Ill., former residents of Granite City, said the custom was successfully established in Wheaton some time ago and "creates a spectacular effect throughout the community."

The community-wide project is sponsored by the Wheaton Springbrook Center, Infant Welfare Society of Chicago.

Whether only a small area or an entire town is lighted in this manner, the effect of rows of candles burning along driveways and sidewalks is most spectacular and adds a special facet to the joy of the Christmas season, reflecting the tradition of lighting the way for the Christ Child on Christmas Eve, the Morris' said.

The couple explained that a luminaria is made by filling a No. 10 brown paper bag with about three inches of sand and folding down the sides of the bag twice with one-inch folds.

A plunger's candle (5 inches high by 1½ inches in diameter) is placed in the center of the sand.

The luminarias are then situated from five to ten feet apart along driveways or sidewalks of private residences, churches, schools or municipal buildings.

They burn for many hours giving a golden glow, the Morris' said. For the most effective result, neighboring families cooperate to produce a continuous line of lights, they added.

Their location and being inserted in sand eliminates concern about fire safety, the former residents advised.

In Wheaton, as in other communities where the custom has become a tradition, the luminarias are lighted at the same time by all participants. This year, the grand union lighting time in Wheaton is set for 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 24, unless the elements do not permit. In that case, the former resident said, starting hour for the display is delayed until Christmas night.

Morris' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Morris of Venice, who have witnessed the luminaria lighting project in Wheaton, passed along the information from their son and daughter-in-law to the Press-Record. They suggested a local organization may be interested in sponsoring such a project here.

84 Lumber plans Christmas party

On Sunday, all ninety-five 84 Lumber stores will hold Christmas parties for 84 Club members, guests and friends of 84.

The parties will feature the Paul Bunyan games — open to all guests — men, women and children. The games are contests in nail-driving, cross-cut sawing, log rolling and tobacco putting for distance and accuracy.

Winners of each event will get free turkeys as prizes. There also will be a nail-guessing contest and a coloring contest for the youngsters.

The parties will begin at each store at 1 p.m. and continue until 5 p.m. Experience has shown that an average of 1,000 will attend each store's free party — which means that 84 should entertain over 100,000 at this year's parties.

Landlords can't bar children

Parents who have been facing difficulty finding an apartment because landlords or rental agents won't allow children in the building may find they have the law on their side.

The Illinois State Bar Association, which is comprised of 15,000 attorneys in the state, reports that a 62-year old law provides legal recourse.

According to the law adopted by the Illinois legislature in 1909, it is illegal "and opposed to public policy" for a landlord or a rental agent to refuse to rent an apartment to the parents of small children.

It states that no property owner or his agent may require as a condition of the lease that there be no children under 14 years of age living in the apartment.

And, it says, neither can anyone be forced to give up an apartment because of children born after moving in, the ISBA notes.

The lawyers' group said the law applies to individual landlords and agents as well as to corporations and associations owning or operating the property.

Animal series

John Walsh, a field officer for the International Society for the Protection of Animals, explains the proper care and appreciation of both domesticated and wild animals on a new 13-part series, "Walsh's Animals," to be telecast at 6 p.m. Sundays beginning Dec. 8 on Channel 9.

"Walsh's Animals" suggests that all must all take responsibility for the care of animals, for in a world of increasing complexity, they cannot care for themselves.

"If you care about the good-natured slob of a dog on the living room rug," says Walsh, "you've got to care about his relations in the wild that have been trapped, shot, poisoned and forced to the brink of extinction."

The series is aimed at adults as well as children, and describes proper care of domesticated animals as well as startling facts about vanishing species of wild animals.

Walsh believes the whole animal kingdom is "man's best friend," and that something must be done about "the hole in the ark" with regard to human abuse of wild animals.

New approach to educating gifted youngsters in Illinois

December has been declared Gifted Education Month in Illinois by Gov. Dan Walker, who urges parents and educators to become more aware of the special problems and needs of gifted children.

The state education office is sponsoring a conference Dec. 4-6 in Decatur for those who work with gifted children.

"Because these children are special, because they possess talents and abilities beyond the ordinary, their educational needs are special," retiring State Supt. Michael J. Bakalis comments.

"The Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction has long recognized these needs by reimbursing districts for approved programs for gifted children. About half the state's 1,000 school districts take part in this voluntary program."

The emphasis in gifted education has changed from the past practice of placing gifted youngsters in accelerated or enriched programs, to providing individualized attention to their needs within the regular classroom, he said.

"These children represent a valuable human resource, and from their numbers will come many of the leaders of tomorrow. It is up to us now to make sure each of them has the opportunity to develop his or her special abilities as fully as possible," Bakalis said.

"Our greatest national resource is probably our gifted and talented children," the governor's proclamation says. "But because these children consistently excel or have the potential to excel above the average in determined areas of human endeavor, their problems are unique, requiring special care and understanding."

"Gifted children, teachers tell us, are found in all ethnic, religious and socio-economic groups. Unless they are identified and encouraged to develop their natural abilities, the valuable contributions they might some day make to our society will be irrevocably lost."

The progress that humankind has made in the sciences, arts, politics, education and other fields has been due to the vision and expertise of endowed and trained individuals. The future depends, no less than has the past, on the acumen and responsibility of our leaders.

"Six Talents for the Seventies" is the theme. The talents around which conference sessions will center are specific academic aptitude, creative intellectual ability, creative thinking ability, psycho-motor ability, talent in the visual and performing arts, and leadership ability.

The sessions will cover a wide range of topics, from specific subject areas such as language and mathematics, through broader subjects such as personalizing instruction and increasing creativity. Some presentations will explain successful programs for gifted children used by various communities.

The work of gifted children will be shown and teacher-made and commercial materials for gifted children will be on display.

Davis-Palchey nuptials at Madison Presbyterian

Miss Donna M. Palchey and Army Private Phillip J. Davis III exchanged wedding vows in a ceremony on Nov. 10 at the First United Presbyterian Church in Madison.

Officiating at the double ring service at 4:30 in the afternoon was the Rev. Frank Christ. Mrs. Robert Stevens presided at the organ and played "Hawaiian Wedding Song," "We're Only Just Begun," "The Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Parents of the bride are Madison Superintendent of Schools and Mrs. John L. Palchey, 1545 Third St. The groom is a son of the late Mrs. Patricia F. Watson and a stepson of Tom Watson of Columbia, Mo., formerly of Madison. Escorted down the white carpeted aisle and given in marriage by her father, the former Miss Palchey chose a princess style gown fashioned of polyester crepe satin.

The molded bodice featured a decorative lace inset, a high scalloped neckline and long, tapered cathedral lace sleeves. Matching scalloped lace bordered the hemline of the slightly full skirt.

She wore a lace headpiece to hold in place a full length veil of candlelight illusion, edged in lace. She carried a bouquet of peach and ivory roses interspersed with baby's breath and encircled with a garland of scalloped lace.

Honor attendant Miss Debbie Palchey, a sister of the bride, and the bridesmaid, Miss Carol Palchey, the bride's cousin,

Their frocks were fashioned along princess lines. The scoop necklines were edged in lace and the long sleeves terminated at the wrist in a lace ruffle. Each attendant held a bouquet of teal blue baby mums, peach rosebuds and ivory Sweetheart roses, surrounded with lace.

The groom chose Stanley Lapinski as his best man. John Palchey, a brother of the bride, was groomsmen.

Ushers included George Palchey, the bride's uncle, and John and Rick Jenner, nephews of the groom.

Tina Vaughn and Mary Susan Palchey, a cousin of the bride, attended the guest book at a reception held at Croatian Hall in Madison.

An uncle and aunt of the bride, Dr. and Mrs. Chris Palchey, hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Cheshire Inn in Clayton, Mo.

A graduate of Madison High School, the bride was employed at the Federal Reserve Bank in St. Louis. The groom, a 1971 graduate of Edwardsville High School, attended Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Presently, he is stationed at Triple Army Hospital in Honolulu, Hawaii, where the newly married couple will reside.

Out-of-town guests here for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Dick Jenner and family from Marion, Ohio, and Mrs. Larry Reising and son, Pullman, MARRIED. Army Private and Mrs. Phillip J. Davis III, who were married in an afternoon ceremony at the First United Presbyterian Church in Madison. She is the former Miss Donna M. Palchey, a daughter of Madison Superintendent of Schools and Mrs. John L. Palchey, 1545 Third St.

Chris Palchey of Springfield, Mo., and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Palchey of Akron, Ohio, all relatives of the bride.

Wendy Oliveira weds James Mark Bilbrey

An out-of-town wedding of interest here was that of Miss Wendy Ann Oliveira, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hartwell Oliveira of Honolulu, Hawaii, and James Mark Bilbrey, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Bilbrey of Greensburg, Ind., formerly of Venice, taking place Nov. 15 in Greensburg.

The Rev. Thomas Amsden officiated at the double ring ceremony at 7:30 in the evening at St. Mary's Catholic Church. Burning tapers in branched candelabra were placed on the altar and glowing candles were situated in the recesses of each window of the sanctuary. Fall flowers in gold vases added to the church setting.

Organist Jerry Schwendenmann accompanied Mrs. Robert Rust, soloist, who sang "Whither Thou Goest," "If," "Ave Maria," and "We've Only Just Begun."

A scripture reading was given by Mrs. Nick Bruno.

Venise lace appliques, etched with seed pearls and crystals, encircled the neckline and edged the long bell sleeves of the bride's pea satin gown.

Her shoulder length veil of illusion was secured to a headpiece of silk roses, created and worn by the bride, was composed of miniature carnations in various shades of pink, baby's breath and smilax entwined with burgundy velvet ribbon and tiny white wedding bells.

The maid of honor was the groom's sister, Miss Susan Bilbrey. The junior bridesmaid, also a sister of the groom, was Miss Julie Bilbrey.

They wore gowns made in similar style in shades of pink broadcloth fashioned with round necklines and short puffed sleeves. Each wore a head wreath of miniature carnations in pink hues intermingled with white baby's breath and secured to a burgundy velvet bow with shoulder length streamers.

Danny Bilbrey, a brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers included three uncles of the groom, Harold LaBolt, Charles LaBolt and Ralph Stacy.

The groom's mother selected a floor length dress of dusty rose print enhanced with ecru lace trim. Her corsage was made up of pink carnations.

A reception was held at the Knights of St. John's Hall in Greensburg. The buffet table featured fresh pineapple and assorted fruit in keeping with Hawaiian tradition. The fruit was served with a wedding cake and punch.

Assisting at the reception were Michael Wamsley and Mrs. Ralph Stacy, an aunt of the groom, who presided at the guest book.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Bilbrey are members of the U.S. Air Force and are stationed at Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill. They will leave in April for a tour of duty in Germany.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES MICHAELS, whose wedding took place Grace Baptist Church. She is the former Miss Donna Rae Etherton, a daughter of Mrs. Alice Etherton, 2505 Adams St., and the late Arvie Etherton.

Donna Etherton becomes Mrs. Charles Michaels

Miss Donna Rae Etherton became the bride of Charles Edwin Michaels in an evening ceremony on Nov. 2 at Grace Baptist Church.

The Rev. William Duval performed the double ring ceremony at 7 o'clock before an altar decorated with bouquets of white gladioli and blue blossoms.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Alice Etherton, 2505 Adams St., and the late Arvie Etherton. Parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Michaels, reside at 2437 Ronney Drive.

For her wedding, the bride chose a full length gown of white satin designed with a voile overlay bodice. Daisy lace motifs accented the high neckline and sleeves, the latter fashioned in voile and satin and tightly gathered at the wrists into wide cuffs.

A Juliet cap of lace daisies secured a shoulder length veil, enhanced with lace appliques, and a long veil which cascaded to the floor. She carried a bouquet of white daisies, pink Sweetheart roses, baby's breath and greenery.

She held a bouquet of white carnations, baby's breath and small carnations in a deep burgundy shade.

John Michaels, a brother of the groom, served as best man.

A reception was held immediately following the service at the Canal Restaurant. Mrs. Etherton, mother of the bride, wore a formal length knit gown in blue and silver. The groom's mother, Mrs. Michaels, was attired in white polyester knit. Both wore corsages of white Sweetheart roses.

The bride is a 1974 graduate of Granite City High School. Her husband was graduated in 1969 from Granite City High School. He is employed at the Razor's Edge Barber Shop.

They are now residing in Granite City.

According to Buehler, beauticians are not permitted to cut hair for men or women customers unless they also are registered with the state as barbers.

He said the Beauty Culture Act provides specifically that "This act shall not authorize any registered beauty culturist to cut or clip the hair of any person unless he has first obtained a certificate of registration as a barber under the provisions of an act to regulate the pursuit of the business, art and avocation of a barber."

Hearings on curbing auto noise in Illinois

By JOAN MURARO
Press-Record
Springfield Bureau
Three public hearings have been set on proposed regulations to control motor vehicle noise in Illinois. The first sessions will be held by the Pollution Control Board Dec. 10 and 11 in Chicago, at the Field Museum. The third will be held Dec. 13 at the public library in Peoria.

All the hearings will begin at 10 a.m., and any interested person may appear to voice his views, for or against the proposals.

Those wishing to testify are to notify the hearing officer for the Pollution Control Board, prior to the appearance, to be sure that time is allotted.

Persons unable to appear personally to testify may submit written testimony directly to the Board's offices at 309 W. Washington St., Suite 300, Chicago, 60606.

The regulations as proposed cover motorcycles, cars, trucks and buses, and are based on considerations of technical feasibility, economic reasonableness and the effects on people of motor vehicles in relation to speech, communication and sleep interference, as well as annoyance and hearing damage.

Two categories of regulations have been proposed—one to cover "in use" vehicles, and the other governing new vehicles. The "in use" vehicles would be those already in use, or purchased before Dec. 3, 1975.

For "in use" vehicles, different decibel limits would be set for vehicles moving at less than 35 miles per hour and for those going over 35 mph, while in the case of trucks, the truck weight would be taken into account as well as its speed.

Compliance would be enforced by state and local law enforcement officers. Vehicles making more noise than regulations permit would be stopped.

New vehicles, those manufactured after Dec. 31, 1975, must have adequate mufflers, designed to not exceed the maximum sound levels.

These provisions would be enforced by the state Environmental Protection Agency and the secretary of state.

Car dealers registering with the secretary of state's office for selling licenses would be responsible for handing only those vehicles certified by the manufacturer as meeting the Illinois noise standards.

Other provisions in the proposal apply to equipment standards for any vehicle using Illinois highways except for farm tractors and antique cars.

These standards would set requirements for mufflers and

Free clinic to evaluate handicapped

A free clinic to evaluate physically handicapped children and to refer them to doctors in the proper medical specialty areas will be held from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

The clinic is sponsored by Granite City Elks Lodge 1063 as part of the Elks' 47-year-old evaluation program.

Quad-City area physicians will be present to identify remedial problems and refer the children for proper care.

Parents of physically handicapped children from newborn to age 21 are being encouraged to bring their children to the clinic. School nurses also are being asked to refer handicapped children to the clinic.

The clinic will be held in the hospital's older section, fourth floor, room 404.

Other noise abatement equipment, such as air intake and cooling systems, and would prohibit operating a vehicle without the proper muffler, installed and operating.

Also barred would be cutouts or other "defeat" mechanisms, and the modifying of the originally-installed intake or exhaust system of a vehicle in order to cause more noise.

Dealers, or persons installing auto parts, would be barred from knowingly selling or installing parts for a cooling, intake or exhaust system if these would cause the vehicle to make more noise than the original equipment.

Designed to outlaw the sale of inadequate mufflers designed to make a distinctive noise, the regulation would not affect a dealer who, in good faith, sold a muffler of the original type which is then installed on a different model vehicle to cause an increased noise, without the dealer's knowledge.

The PCB is required to hold public hearings on any proposed regulations before the proposals can be adopted.

Additional hearings into these noise proposals may be set for other times and places, if the board finds a need or sufficient interest.

Council faces chicken problem

Revised city codes that would place more stringent regulations on raising and keeping poultry, horses, swine or other stock within the city limits were requested at a meeting of the City Council Monday night after a long argument involving a complaint by a Granite Cityan about chickens kept by a neighbor.

The request was made by Alderman Sam Whitmer who said he would be in favor of a "blanket ordinance" that would regulate the keeping of stock more effectively than present city ordinances.

Alderman Ronald Coleman asked City Attorney George Filcock if present ordinances provide sufficient control. Filcock replied that they do, and that Eric Robertson, assistant city attorney, already is planning action in the case involving the complaint about the chickens.

The complaint was made by L. J. Guth, 2811 E. 25th St., who appealed to the council for action in the Nov. 25 meeting. Guth complained at that time by letter that a neighbor who had moved into the neighborhood brought with him more than 100 chickens which he kept first in a garage, but later turned loose, permitting them to roam into other yards.

Guth said the chickens damaged yards and flower beds and constituted a nuisance. Guth's letter was referred to the inspector's office and to the city attorney at that time without being read in full to the council. Guth sent another letter and appeared personally before the council Monday night, noting that his earlier letter should have been read in full "like other letters" and that the city should act to set up more complete controls to protect householders in such cases.

Alderman Gerald Parmlay read existing codes that regulate the keeping of poultry and stock, but Alderman Roy Poulos commented that "Those are like the rest of them... We have the laws but don't enforce them."

Filcock said he believed the problem would be resolved by action being taken by the assistant city attorney. Guth's letter was placed on file. The council received notices from the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners that Harry Hillman Sr. of the Fire Department has been promoted from engineer to the rank of captain, and that Harvey Smallie has been promoted from pipeman to engineer.

Ordinances establishing a bus zone and five-minute parking regulations for autos on Nevada Avenue at Washington School were adopted at the urging of Alderman Walter Nomm of the Fifth Ward as a safety measure for school pupils.

Nomm served as mayor pro tem at Monday's meeting in the absence of Mayor Paul Schuler who is attending the National League of Cities convention in Houston, Tex.

In other action the council approved an ordinance establishing a 1 per cent use tax on articles purchased by Granite City residents outside the state which require registration with the Illinois secretary of state, such as boats, autos and motorcycles. The tax will be collected by the state and allotted to the city.

An auto expense allowance of $50 per month for Cassner Skubish, air pollution control inspector, was approved.

An ordinance amending the 1974-75 appropriation bill adopted in July was presented but was not given final passage after Parmlay, chairman of the Finance committee, said he had not seen the bill and wanted time to study it.

The measure was placed on first reading with the provision that copies will be sent to all members of the council so they may study the proposed changes before the council's next meeting on Dec. 16.

The council was informed that the Madison County Clerk's office will conduct a seminar on campaign disclosure laws at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville Dec. 16 and 17. The two-day seminar will be held in the DeJa Vu Room of the University Center.

Public meeting on dredging to retain nine-foot river channel

The St. Louis District, U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, will hold its public meeting to discuss the 1975 channel maintenance dredging program along navigable waters within the district next week.

The meeting has been set for Thursday, Dec. 12, at the Gateway Hotel, St. Louis, starting at 1 p.m.

All interests concerned with work conducted by the Corps to maintain the nine-foot channel of the Mississippi River and lower Illinois River are invited to attend, a spokesman said.

In conducting the meeting, the Engineer Corps will present plans for its program of over-water dredging and will discuss its position in the preservation of environmental values during such activities.

Significant areas to be considered will be laws affecting the dredging practices and the type of materials, disposal sites and areas which historically have required attention.

The Corps has coordinated its planning with other federal and state agencies in Illinois and Missouri and expects representatives of these groups to attend the meeting.

All interested parties, individuals, groups or organizations are welcome to submit facts, statements or findings either in writing or orally at the meeting, it was explained.

Oral statements should be prepared in written form for accuracy of recording at the session. The Corps stresses that everyone will have an opportunity to be heard at the meeting, and that such meetings are a part of the public participation program being fostered by the Corps.

Christmas concert by choruses

A Christmas concert of choral music will be presented Sunday at 8:15 p.m. in the Meridian Ballroom of the University Center of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

The program is divided into three parts, each sung by a separate chorus. Leonard Van Camp will conduct all three.

The Community Choral Society will begin the program with excerpts from J. S. Bach's Christmas Oratorio. The chorus will be accompanied by a seven-member instrumental ensemble.

After an interlude of Christmas carols performed by a brass quartet conducted by David Week, the University Chorus will present an Early American Christmas Triptych, compiled and edited by Van Camp. It includes music by Handel, Read, Mendelssohn, Holden and Tansur. It will be followed by the Magnificat of Thompson and Pachelbel.

The third part of the program is devoted to music sung by the Concert Chorus of the University. It includes music by Mozart, Sweelinck, Schuetz and Pinkham will be sung.

The Concert Chorus was the winner this summer of the Choral Competition in Spittal, Austria. It was the first American chorus ever to place in that competition, and the only one from this country selected to participate this year. As part of that European tour, the Chorus became the first American choir ever to perform a concert in Czechoslovakia.

Counseling services for Quad-Cityans expanded

Several late-fall staff changes are expected to enhance services of the Quad-City Mental Health Center. It was announced today.

Charles DeGiacoio has been re-employed by the Adult Outpatient Program of the Quad-City Mental Health Center.

He received his bachelor degree in 1969 and master of science in 1970 from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale. His psychological internship was with the Roxana School District.

DeGiacoio has been employed by the Anna State Hospital and the Rehabilitation Center in Evansville, Ind. He was employed as a clinical psychologist in the Adult Outpatient Program here previously.

He has a satellite clinic in Collinsville and Edwardsville a half day a week.

Dorothy Spencer is the new clinical psychologist with the Day Hospital Program here. She obtained her master degree in clinical psychology in 1966 at Case Western Reserve University, Cleveland, O.

She has taken undergraduate and graduate degrees in nursing as well as in psychology. In addition, she has done work on the graduate level in human relations training at Bethel, Maine, through the auspices of the National Training Laboratories and the University of Maine.

From 1967 to 1970, she did post-graduate work at the Gestalt Institute of Cleveland, of which she is a certified graduate. She has had a broad range of experience in work with ongoing therapy and encounter groups, including an encounter group from a coffee house and nearby commune.

She is experienced in a variety of methods of psychological assessment, both clinical and vocational.

Of major professional importance to her are the spheres of psychological intervention and service which have strongly emerged into practice within the last eight to ten years, including urban and suburban problems, special social groups and subcultures, and areas of multi-problem intervention demands, whether individual or group.

Her preparation, experience and post-graduate training focus heavily on "the individual" as he lives in social groups and the community.

Her emphasis as a practitioner centers on helping to provide opportunities for new learning, for identifying more successful ways to relating, and for maximizing the strengths within the individual and the group.

In her work as staff psychologist in the Mental Health Clinic's Day Hospital in Granite City, Dorothy Spencer finds herself in a program which emphasizes these same areas of endeavor—program which "provides people in the Quad-City area with vastly increased opportunities for personal growth, mental health counseling, and vocational training, through the use of intensive group counseling and therapy," she comments.

Della Kinsolving is the new coordinator of the Community Outreach and Referral Service. In August of this year, she received her master of social work degree from the St. Louis University School of Social Service, where she specialized in community mental health. She has a bachelor degree from West Virginia Wesleyan College.

She brings to the clinic a varied background of experience, including work with mental health, alcoholism, medical social work and public welfare services.

The Community Outreach and Referral Service is a program designed to offer mobile, outreach services to "high-risk persons" by providing alternatives to psychiatric hospitalizations.

The service attempts to attain this goal by closely following up patients discharged from Alton State Hospital through community visits and assessments, referral to social agencies for counseling, guidance to financial aid resources and other concrete need resources.

The program outreach workers stay in touch with patients and serve as spokesmen and advocates to other agencies, if necessary, in order to support the client and eliminate the need for hospitalization.

The program also takes referrals from the community to visit persons and assess situations where there is potential for psychiatric hospitalization.

Again, the outreach workers make maximum use of community social agencies to support an individual to prevent unnecessary hospitalizations.

The service has a working relationship and ready access to medical doctors, psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers, private hospitals and public and private community agencies.

Referrals to the program are directed to Della Kinsolving. Debby Feinstein has been employed as the new member of the Family Development Team. She received her bachelor degree in 1971 from the University of Rochester.

After six months of volunteer social work in Israel, she spent some time working with a subsidized housing program in Rochester, N. Y., and made plans to return to a graduate program in social work.

She received a master degree in social work from the George Warren Brown School of Social Work at Washington University in December 1973. She has had experience working in the St. Louis Child Development Clinic, Southside Day Nurseries and Girl's Home Crisis Unit in St. Louis.

Mrs. Lessman, who had lived in this area since 1911, is survived by one son, Gordon "Piccolo Pete" Routh of Mitchell; two daughters, Mrs. C. E. (Doris) Carlton of Sunny Vale, Calif., and Mrs. Vern (Ruby) Sappington of Granite City; four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

She will have an active role in the development and functioning of the new Family Development Center.

This program represents an attempt to combine a family-oriented treatment program with individualized and intensive treatment for adolescents.

The center will be located in a facility outside the Mental Health Clinic, and several different treatment activities will be offered. These will include family therapy, individual therapy, adolescent group therapy, communication training and adolescent-parent training. Pat Boman is the newest staff member on the Crisis Intervention Service Program.

She graduated from the University of Missouri-St. Louis in May 1974 with a bachelor of arts degree in sociology, with emphasis on social work.

She completed her practicum placements at Youth Emergency Service and the St. Louis County Health Department Family Planning and Prenatal Infant Clinic.

SHOPLIFTING IS A CRIME!

Shoplifting's a crime . . . a BIG crime. It's costing merchants $4,000,000.00 a day! More money than is involved in narcotics, smuggling, extortion. Merchants are tired of it. Many cannot stay in business. So, merchants are getting tough. They're putting shoplifters out of business, too. ANY shoplifter! Teenagers, housewives, a father, the pros and the amateurs. They're all the same. So, if you know a friend who steals, they need a friend to warn them. Shoplifters are arrested, fingerprinted, booked . . . BRANDED as a criminal . . . FOR LIFE!

Contract for railroad overpass will expedite River Road

Awarding of a contract this week to construct a highway-railroad grade separation structure at Chicago Avenue and the Granite City Army Installation railroad yard is a big step forward for this community.

The long-awaited project, to be carried out by Hoeffken Brothers of Belleville, will cost $2,593,187, compared to an advance cost estimate of $2,978,000. The award was approved Monday in Springfield by the Illinois Department of Transportation.

Federal Aid Route 151 (Great River Road) has proven to be of considerable value to the Quad-Cities and Madison County but its use has been limited by the dead-end at the Army Installation, requiring a left turn onto Niedringhaus Avenue. Now that the overpass is to be constructed, rapid progress in extending the highway to the south seems assured.

The next key link for the River

Road will be Venice, where needed right-of-way has been available for a long period. The complex intersection near Broadway and Main Street will include access to the Venice area and points south, and also an opportunity to turn onto the McKinley Bridge.

To aid in ending traffic delays in the Broadway-Main area, Broadway is to be relocated, with westward traffic veering slightly to the northwest to pass under the Venice railroad crossing through an already-built underpass structure.

It was noted at last week's Venice City Council meeting that drainage in the underpass area continues to be a problem, perhaps necessitating a well-point system at a cost that might range as high as $75,000. Whatever the solution, it will need to be found in the near future, judging by the big impetus that the Great River Road received this week.

Constructive plans for redevelopment of Downtown area

Downtown Granite City, Inc., and its Central Business District Committee are embarking on ambitious but sound improvement plans, including an intensified effort to attract stores to vacant quarters and the scheduling of practical steps to improve and redevelop physical facilities.

Subcommittees being formed include:

1. Downtown improvement—an action group to spur new development.
2. Master plan—a planning group engaged directly in encouraging a "new look" and in dealing with parking and traffic circulation needs. Vehicle parking and street patterns are regarded as linked to current hopes of assembling land for new businesses. Also related are store and home remodeling projects.
3. Downtown promotion.
4. Housing—a group to contact and assist individuals, contractors and developers in building new homes and apartments near the central commercial district.
5. Automotive—a unit to cooperate with the master plan subcommittee in creating an "automobile showcase" area.

6. Downtown city subcommittees—a group to work with and coordinate activities with municipal officials.

7. Finance—a unit to aid those interested in obtaining financial assistance for new construction, remodeling, relocating and expanding buildings.

Other plans involve exhibits, arts and craft sales and food sales; possible carpeting of sidewalks to further brighten the district; an information center; and a search for a name to describe the main business district.

Goal of the business firms is to underscore Downtown's role as "an exciting place to be" . . . a place where "things are happening."

While downtown districts across the nation have undergone changing circumstances and challenges, the record has been that the outcome is not inevitable—it is directly affected by the amount of interest and effort within a particular community. With this in mind, it is refreshing to see the current surge of central business district improvement activity in Granite City.

Exemption sought for states

By LESTER BELL
Press-Record
Washington Bureau

Congress at the urging of U.S. Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe is moving to exempt state lotteries from federal anti-gambling laws that prohibit the transporting of lottery information across state lines.

The attorney general gave Congress 90 days to amend outmoded anti-lottery laws before he considers taking court action against the states.

Saxbe has testified before Congress that the old laws put the Justice Department in the position of having to enforce them when state officials are pressing for amendments to permit them to use the mails and to permit publication and broadcasting of lottery information.

Saxbe supports a bill introduced by Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., chairman of the Judiciary Committee. Rodino's committee approved the bill as it was originally offered by the chairman, stripping added in subcommittee and opposed by Saxbe.

The Rodino bill, approved on the voice vote, would amend U.S. anti-gambling laws to permit publication and broadcasting of advertising, lists of prizes and winners, and other information. It would also permit the mailing of newspapers across state lines which carry advertisements and other information about the state lotteries.

Other provisions of the Rodino measure would allow the transportation and mailing of tickets and other materials when this is conducted in interstate, or within state boundaries.

Rodino's bill, in line with Saxbe's objections, however, would not cover lotteries run by any private organization, whether by churches or non-profit groups.

The subcommittee when it reported its version of the Rodino bill on Oct. 17 had added the exemption opposed by Saxbe.

He said the exemption of "a lottery authorized and licensed in accordance with state law" appeared throughout the bill and, he felt, "would surely open the door to the creation of lotteries for private profit."

A source on the House Judiciary Committee said the objectionable exemption had been removed from the bill before it was approved. Only two minor "technical" amendments were made.

The Senate has pending an almost identical bill. House action could get it moving toward the floor.

Passage of identical bills in both houses would speed enactment. If the versions differ on passage, their differences would have to be worked out in a conference committee and each chamber would have to adopt the conference report for final Congressional action.

Christmas a time for sharing, caring

To the Editor:

Imagine yourself a young girl, lonely and frightened. You have no furniture, no refrigerator or stove, and little money. But you do have a baby and it's Christmas!

Christmas is a time when eyes and ears are turned outward, away from their usual introspective concern, toward a compassionate, understanding care for others.

It is a time when many persons do more for others, and add an extra special touch to their family relationships.

This young girl was different; she wanted her baby to have a Christmas as any young child should have. But with so little, where could she turn?

Who could possibly help? Who would possibly care? The Salvation Army cared.

The Salvation Army cares throughout the year, but especially at Christmas. Special programs are set up in every community by either the Army's Corps-Community Center or the Salvation Army's Service Unit Committee.

Dinners are brought to shut-ins, gift baskets wrapped for the less fortunate, and Christmas cheer is spread throughout the community.

The joy inspired in those who receive the Army's help reflects the importance of that aid. Joy and hope are hard to express, but this young mother described her hope precisely.

"There are only two days of my life in which I've been touched so deeply. The day my baby was born, and today. Just knowing there are people in this world who really care, makes me sure I'm going to make it. The relief that her baby would have at least one present Christmas morning overwhelmed the young mother. She wrote: 'I'd like to thank you from the bottom of my heart for thinking of me and my baby on Christmas.'"

"I understand now that it's not presents that make Christmas. It's people. People like you, who are so loving, so giving and so concerned."

Sharing is caring. Your gift to the Salvation Army's Christmas program can help many people, just like this young mother. Not only will you brighten their Christmas, but you may also brighten their days throughout the year by lighting one or more lights on this symbolic tree of love and compassion in action.

Eagles made Thanksgiving brighter

To the Editor:

On Oct. 31, it was my privilege to be one of the guest speakers at the Eagles' Honorary Senior Citizens' Thanksgiving Dinner.

This was my first contact with the Eagles and it was indeed a pleasant surprise. I had not seen for several years.

Chris VonNida, master of ceremonies, informed the guests that the Thanksgiving dinner for senior citizens was all planned and wanted 80 people to attend.

He also informed that the Eagles were giving the Granite City Council of Senior Citizens $25 for purchase of something we may not need, but a new card table for our center.

The Thanksgiving dinner was a great success. It was a beautiful day for the 90 guests who attended.

Members of the Eagles provided transportation for the ones who were without cars. Naturally, turkey and all the trimmings were served.

Mr. Huff, one of the Eagles members, gave us a piano concert throughout the meal and played many old songs of our younger years.

The Eagles Aerie No. 1126 of Granite City, Ill., is commended for its humanitarian interest.

We, the senior citizens, are grateful for their efforts on our behalf and thank them with deep affection.

Congress votes against excessive secrecy in operating government

Editor and Publisher magazine—in over-riding President Ford's veto, the House and Senate passed a measure in favor of freedom of information and the public's right to know what its government is doing.

Only 27 senators and 31 representatives voted against approving the 17 amendments which are designed to close loopholes in the 1966 Freedom of Information Act.

In the House, no one spoke in support of the President's position and Rep. William S. Moorehead of Pennsylvania urged: "Let our voices here today make clear to the doubting citizens of America that Congress, at least, is committed to the principle of open government."

Rep. Bill Alexander of Arkansas asked: "Hasn't the White House learned that government secrecy is the real enemy of democracy?"

We believe the White House does know that. President Ford indicated his acceptance of the desirability and necessity of relaxing secrecy rules and speeding up the process of declassification when he vetoed his bill on the basis of certain provisions and said he would submit his own suggestions for consideration.

Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine stated, "This legislation represents a unique opportunity to bring the people of the country closer to the facts and figures on which governmental decisions are based."

Sen. Muskie also delayed any further the people's opportunity to know more about their government. For too long, that opportunity has been eroded by not enough candor and too much secrecy."

President Ford had said the bill is unconstitutional. Sen. Muskie quoted an opinion from Professor Phillip Kurland, author and expert on constitutional law on that point, as follows:

"I would repeat that the issue between Congress and the President here is not whether there is or should be a privilege for military and state secrets. Both are in agreement that there should be such a privilege."

"Nor is the issue between the President and Congress the question whether the federal courts should have the power of in camera inspection in order to determine whether the materials that are classified should retain their privilege."

Both are in agreement that in camera inspection is appropriate.

"The controversy is solely over the question of the standard to be applied by the courts in making determinations of availability. Congress says that the materials in question must in fact have been properly classified in accordance with

Democrat outlook rosy—except for intraparty fights

Editor's Note: Democrats may find themselves involved in an internecine fight for control of the victories they won Nov. 5—at both the state and national levels.

Those predictions came from Samuel K. Gove, director of the Institute of Government and Public Affairs at the University of Illinois, in an interview aimed at interpreting future consequences from the Nov. 5 election.

Gove, a member of the institute staff since 1950 and its director since 1967, was the Illinois analyst and correspondent for ABC Television for six elections through 1970.

By ROBERT ESTILL

QUESTION: How do you generally analyze the Democrats' sweeping victory in Illinois and across the nation?

GOVE: I think it was very good. The Democrats are at a low point. It was an off-year election. But there's no question that inflation and Watergate were very important issues nationally. It was an extremely low turnout. I think a lot of people who stayed home were just disillusioned. I do not think they were satisfied with the way things are going. . . . I think they were just turned off.

Q: Do you think there were any major factors other than Watergate and inflation that led to the Democrats' victory in Illinois?

A: I don't think as a generalization you can put your finger on any one thing. It depends on the particular area you happen to be in. There were some local situations. It's very clear that the (Chicago Mayor Richard) Daley organization is still able to turn out its voters. Obviously in the metropolitan area the RTA (Regional Transit Authority) is still a factor to be reckoned with. In a lot of other places, people are becoming more aware of how to use the cumulative voting system for the House of Representatives. I think in some cases it was pretty clear they've learned how to use this system for what they want to accomplish.

Q: Do you think the Democrats' victory was due more to Republicans voting in the Democratic column or a large surge of independents voting with the Democrats?

A: I think you are getting a much larger group of people who are independents, who say "a curse on both the parties" and who feel no compulsion to vote the straight party ticket. I think a good analysis of the returns, which I haven't seen yet, would show that there were just an awful lot of crossover, and most of these are people who would not classify themselves as independents.

Q: Do you think the low turnout was due primarily to Republicans staying at home on election day?

A: The figure I saw was nationally a 38 per cent turnout. This would mean both parties would have to have stayed at home. I didn't see any groundsweep of Republicans, as such, staying at home.

Q: You don't think the Democrats will fully enjoy their new political prosperity—that it will lead to even more intraparty bickering.

A: Right. I think over the years the Democrats have been more divided than Republicans . . . trying to make the distinction between southern conservatives and northern liberals. I think just coming together will prove to be very disastrous.

long-range, shift of power to the Democratic Party?

A: Yes. I would think so. The number of Democrats is substantially more than the number of Republicans, and I don't see any flocking to the Republicans—particularly after Watergate and their inability to do anything about inflation. I would think if the Democrats had happened to be in office at this time they would be having some of the same problems. I don't think they could come up with any workable solutions to inflation.

Q: Do you think the GOP can recoup by 1976, in terms of both the presidential election and the Illinois legislative races?

A: I think 1976 will depend upon the presidential candidate the Republicans come up with. Possibly President Ford will recoup some of the tremendous losses after his pardoning of Mr. Nixon, and maybe this will be forgotten. He might be the type of person who can rally the troops. In Illinois it's really hard to say where we are in 1976. I think it's very likely we'll have a very sharp Democratic primary contest for governor. On the other hand, Democrats will have a very hard time coming up with a candidate (for president) who will really rally the troops. I think that candidate on the horizon right now. Of course, 1976 will be the last year in Illinois where we elect the governor and the president at the same time (the governor and other state officers will be elected for a two-year term in 1978). This may change the ground rules somewhat.

Q: How much impact do you think Gov. Daniel Walker had on the legislative races? Would the Democrats have won many seats if Walker stayed out of the legislative races?

A: I think you can point to several districts where he made a difference. I'm thinking of the Kankakee district (where incumbent Republican Sen. Edward McElroy was unseated), the Waukegan District (where incumbent Republican Sen. John C. Danahy was unseated). I don't know enough about the Lansing District where Sen. Jack Walker lost but he may well have had an impact there.

Q: With the Democrats in control of the legislature and the governor's office, what do you foresee for the 1975 legislative session?

A: Normally, I would say we would have a united front and we would be getting on with some new programs and matters of importance to Illinois. But I think we will find them very sharply divided. There will be some cooperation, particularly on the budget and things of that type. But I see an awful lot of conflict.

Q: If Victor de Grazia, Walker's aide, does join Chicago alderman William Singler's campaign against Mayor Daley or Walker makes an active effort for Singler in some other way, will this trigger a Water-Daley battle that will preclude any solid legislative accomplishments?

A: It's inevitable. The primary will be in April, and this really will cause an uproar on the legislative front and may affect the leadership fight.

Q: Who do you predict will come out on top in the fight for the leadership?

A: I predict Sen. (Ceil) Pardee, D-Chicago, will make it in the Senate and that's all I'm predicting.

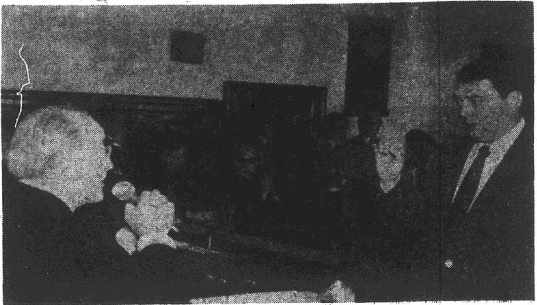

Q: Do you think we've seen a permanent, or at least a

Q: My doctor has put me on a special diet because I have an ulcer. Does the cost of this diet qualify as a deductible medical expense?

A: No. Since your new diet merely replaces food you normally would eat, the cost involved is not a medical expense. A special food or beverage prescribed by your physician is deductible only if it is in addition to your normal diet and in no way a part of your nutritional needs. In such a case, you should consult with your return a statement from your doctor.

State threatens suit on drying of grain

Illinois Agriculture Director Robert J. "Bud" Williams said Tuesday he will file a class action suit this week on behalf of the state's grain producers and dealers against natural gas suppliers in Illinois if a suitable agreement between the groups cannot be reached.

Purpose of the suit, Williams said, would be "to get the natural gas turned back on and keep it on." The director was referring to increasing reports his department has received from farmers and grain elevator operators who say they cannot get natural gas to dry this year's grain harvest.

Flood, drought and early frost this year have produced a crop smaller than anticipated and also somewhat damaged. The weather combination has also meant that some grains were not able to dry in the field and must be artificially dried to keep from rotting, he said.

"By now, it must be obvious to everyone that there are going to be food and grain shortages. To risk further damage to what has been harvested by not drying it properly would be sheer folly.

"We are not talking about just agriculture in this. The consumer is the one really going to get hurt. The consumer would end up with less meat, lower quality meat and higher prices if part of the feed grain we need is allowed to rot away."

Williams said food production has to take a top priority in allocation of resources and that "agriculture just has to have natural gas to produce the food expected of it and to insure the economic stability of a state where 40 per cent of the jobs are related to agriculture."

"We are committed to helping the consumer and the people who supply him. If we have to go to court to do it, that's the road we will take."

Soccer, golf, harrier, football Warriors honored at banquet

By WALTER STRANGE

Press-Record Staff Writer

A crowd of about 300 players, parents, coaches and fans attended the 1974 Granite City High School South fall athletic banquet held Monday evening. Following dinner in the cafeteria, the program of awarding letters and special recognition took place in the South auditorium, where cross-country, golf, football and soccer team members and cheerleaders were honored.

Mrs. Ruth Klaus, cheerleader sponsor, presented letters to the 1974 cheerleaders for soccer and football.

Football cheerleaders were: Kim Seybert, captain, and Shelly Boyd, Kathy Cross, Karol McGovern and Paula Williams, all seniors, and juniors Letting, Connie Heim, Linda Macios and Christie Wickham.

Soccer cheerleaders cited were Terri Moran, captain, and Karin Horn, both seniors, juniors Jo Aerie, Jackie Dorch, Linda Graklanoff, Paula Niebur and Paula Worthen.

Cross-Country Coach Richard Harmon, prior to the awarding of letters to his team, commented: "I would like to give thanks to James Dumont, our principal, Roger Smith, our athletic coordinator, Joseph Fedore, our director of athletics, and Randy Biggestaff, our athletic trainer, all of whom were of real help to me personally and the team this season."

"A special thanks goes to the parents of the boys who run cross-country. We had many of them come out and watch their boys participate, and I and the boys appreciate that very much."

"We had a fairly good season, winning five out of eight dual meets, and in the 11 invitational where you run against several tough schools we never finished worse than sixth."

"The cross-country runners were all fine gentlemen at all times."

Cross-country lettermen honored in addition to the special awards winners were Greg Ahlers, David Brown, James Hall, Sam Nesbit and Ken Meagher.

Randy Biggestaff, athletic trainer, made a special presentation to Dr. Glenn T. Wilkins Jr., a local medical doctor, for his voluntary assistance to all the teams over the past several years.

Biggestaff recognized the student athletic trainers — Rivers Anderson, Keith Pears, Jeff Hood, Brian Konzen, Skip Parnley and Larry Wyatt.

Golf Coach Pat Schuman presented special awards to Craig Bailey as the most improved player and Don Gresco as the most valuable player. The two were also co-captains of the team.

Other golfers receiving letters were Alan Collins, Don Dotzauer, Jay Fedora, Jim

In a surprise presentation, Greg Terrell, co-captain of the Warrior football team, made a special award to Head Football Coach Stan Wojcik on behalf of the entire team.

Young Terrell said that although the team's won-loss record "did not look good, we had a good year. It is the experience that really counts, and we had a coach who never gave up on the team."

"I want to express my deep appreciation to the members of the team who stuck the season out and to a fine coaching staff that helped me personally with this tough season," Coach Wojcik commented.

He introduced the football coaching staff at South: Don Miller, Leroy Beck, Nick Petrillo, Jerry McKechan, Lenny Lybarger and Bryan Wilkinson.

Special awards to South football players went to: Tom Schooley, most valuable player and most valuable back; Doug Hartman, most valuable lineman; and Bob Curtis, who received the Chris Marcovsky Award as the most valuable freshman griddler.

Junior grid lettermen honored were Frank Barunica, Allan Benko, Hartman, Keith Moran, Jerry Patterson, Charlie Ruth and Joe Ward.

Sophomore Paul Evans also was awarded a football letter. Gene Baker, head soccer coach, said, "We have a team that is giving leadership to the entire state. It is not just that they are gifted soccer players, but they work very hard at

Hunt deer Dec. 13-15; state active in arresting poachers

By JOAN MURARO

Press-Record

Springfield Bureau

Legal deer hunting in Illinois got off to a good start this year, and illegal deer hunters are apparently trying to set records, too.

Chief William Bray, head of the conservation department's law enforcement branch, said increasing numbers of arrests for poaching have been made this fall.

And the high price of meat, coupled with expected rises in fur prices, indicates numbers are not likely to slack off.

Poaching—taking a deer illegally—can be an expensive activity to stock the larder, since the Class B misdemeanor carries penalties of up to 30 days in jail, or a $500 maximum fine.

No one recently has drawn the maximum to Chief Bray's knowledge, but he said he knows that several $250 fines have been handed down this season so far.

In addition, the deer is confiscated. So, the poacher not only pays a premium price for shooting it, but he doesn't get to eat it or sell it.

His gun is also confiscated, and can be kept by court order for up to a year after his court appearance. And in some cases, even his auto can be confiscated.

In at least one case this season, the hunter's car was confiscated, the chief said.

While nearly 350 arrests were made during the first of Illinois' two three-day weekends of legal deer hunting, the majority of those were for violating the state's laws calling for protective, bright-colored clothing to be worn in the field.

"We find hunters who wear camouflage suits, or dark green outfits, when they're out for deer," Chief Bray said.

"During deer season, there are 58,000 hunters in the field, and it's essential they wear something that will show what they are."

The chief credited the extensive use of a Department of Transportation aircraft with the success of the search for poachers.

Seven details have been flown so far, he said, chiefly at night to look for hunters using lights to lure deer or other game.

The department has used the two-engine plane during the day as well, he said, to check on people shooting from roads or cars, or in response to complaints from farmers about trespassers.

The night before the deer season started, an aerial surveillance in Jackson, Alexander, Union and Pulaski Counties netted six poachers. Five more had been nabbed Nov. 1 in a different area, and four more were apprehended Nov. 2 when Clark, Jasper, Cumberland and Crawford Counties were monitored.

The department has asked for public support for a campaign against illegal deer hunters. Anyone seeing what appears to be illegal hunting activity is asked to contact the department's regional offices.

Illinois' final legal deer hunting season this year will be

Dec. 13, 14 and 15. During the first weekend, Nov. 15-17, an unofficial record number of 10,340 white-tailed deer was taken in the state.

Madison HS Band concert Sunday

The Madison Senior High School Concert Band will present its first concert of the 1974-75 school year at 3:15 p.m. Sunday in the high school auditorium.

In keeping with the Christmas season, the stage will be decorated in holiday colors, William F. Ledbetter, director of instrumental music for the Madison schools, reported.

Featured on the program will be Peter Lecko, a senior student, playing a violin solo with accompaniment by the band. Lecko will perform "Meditation" from the opera "Thais" by Massenet.

Several numbers in the concert will be directed by Bruce Hawkins, a student teacher from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. Hawkins has been working in the Madison School District under the student teaching program since September.

Season tickets for three concerts currently are available from band students, Ledbetter said. Single admission seats may be purchased at the door immediately before each performance, he added.

Selections will include: "Suite Concertante" by Václav Nelhybel; "Toccata for Band" by Frank Erickson; "American Folk Rhapsody" by Clare Grundman; "Carnival of Melody" arranged by Robert Hawkins.

"Joshua," a novelty number arranged by Paul Yoder; "Christmas Music for Winds" arranged by Cacavas; "Marche Triomphale" by Hector Berlioz; and "Officer of the Day" by R. B. Hall.

Members of the Madison Band Parents Club will assist at the concert by selling tickets, serving as ushers and recording the program, the band director advised.

Bethel 43 elects Patty Brokaw

Others named were Miss Leslie Houser, senior princess; Miss Lisa Smith, junior princess; Miss Becky Burke, guide; and Miss Kim Rapp, marshal. Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lane, parents of the retiring queen, entertained the Bethel 43 members and their parents at a queen's supper prior to the meeting.

Decorations were in keeping with Miss Lane's theme of violets. Small boxes of violets and tall purple tapers were used. About 90 persons attended.

Guests escorted and introduced were Miss Cheryl Rosenthal, honored queen of Bethel 72, Edwardsville; Miss Kristie Christich, Miss Becky Graham and Mrs. Charlotte Rapp, all past honored queens of Bethel 43; Miss Lisa Sobolo, senior princess, Miss Kathy Hertel, junior princess and Miss Ricki Sobolo, choir member, all of Bethel 72, Edwardsville; Howard Prewett, worshipful master of Triple Lodge 835, AF&AM and Mrs. Rebecca Slate, guardian, and Dr. Amos Rode, associate guardian.

Miss Cindy McDaniel, librarian, gave a report, entitled "Thanksgiving." Miss Lane reviewed activities during the past six months and thanked those who assisted her.

Invitations were read to attend installations at Bethel 98, Alton, Saturday at 8 p.m.; Bethel 72, Edwardsville, 7:30 p.m. Sunday; and those at Bethel 65, Columbia, Bethel 92, Lebanon, Bethel 88, Wood River and Bethel 42, Collinsville.

John T. Wright, 1723 State St., was reunited with his two daughters during the weekend after a separation of 15 years. The local man reported being unable to locate the girls until he received a telephone call last week and plans were made to meet together.

The daughters are Mrs. Joni Dutton and Mrs. Debbie Rader. Both reside in Collinsville.

Wright has been employed for 20 years at the A. O. Smith Corp. plant in Granite City. He and his daughters are planning to visit this Sunday with the girls' paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hult, in Flat River, Mo., Wright said.

Bazaar Saturday at Colonial Haven

Colonial Haven Nursing Home will sponsor its first Christmas bazaar on Saturday, Dec. 7, and Saturday, Dec. 21, from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Hand crafted items and bakery goods made by the residents will be featured at the pre-holiday event. Proceeds from the bazaar will be used to purchase a grandfather clock for the home, according to the organizers.

Three gifts to be awarded during the bazaar include an afghan made by Iva Nichols, pillow cases handmade by Beulah Fitzgerald and a crocheted flower basket created by Maggie Trgovich.

It was reported by the residents that a sewing machine has been donated to the nursing home by the Granite City Business and Professional Women's Club for use in the recreation area.

The presentation was made last week by Miss Annellen Smith, club president; Mrs. Genevieve Grady and Mrs. Ann Graklanoff.

FLAMING BATON TWIRLER Deborah Anne Presley is carefully observed by Granite City Fireman Don Hayes, who stood in the stage wings as a safety precaution while the Miss Granite City contestant performed her "fiery" routine.
